DEATH OF MATTHEWS.

The Supreme Court Adjourns on Learning the Sad News.

A LINGERING, PAINFUL ILLNESS

The Remains to Rest in Spring Grove Cemetery at Cincinnati—Effect of the Vacancy as Regards the Session of the Senate.

WASHINGTON, March 22.—Justice Stanley Matthews died at 10 o'clock.

The last change in his condition occurred yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock. In the morning he had been feeling comfortable and cheerful. At that hour, however, the intense pain which marked periods of his decline recurred and never left him until death brought relief.

Dr. Wm. W. Johnson was summoned, and finding the patient suffering so intensely, he administered opiates, which toward morning induced a state of semi-consciousness, in which he remained until the end. Occasionally he would partly revive and recognize the loved ones near him by a glance or the pressure of the hand, but a relapse soon followed. For a number of hours previous to his death he was practically unconscious. In the last hours the dying justice was surrounded by members of his family.

The remains will be interred in the family lot in Spring Grove cemetery, Cincinnati, but the details will not be perfected until the arrival of the dead jurist's oldest son, Mortimer Matthews, of Cincinnati, and his youngest daughter, Grace, wife of Horace Cleveland, assistant United States district attorney at Cincinnati, and his nephew, Justice Harlan. The engagement of Miss Matthews and Justice Gray was announced this week, and the marriage is expected to occur shortly.

THE SENATE ADJOURNS.

WASHINGTON, March 22.—The senate chaplain in his opening prayer made a feeling reference to the death of Justice Matthews. The vice president laid before the senate a note from the chief justice, announcing the death of Justice Matthews, and saying that the funeral would probably occur Monday. The senate adjourned out of respect to the dead jurist.

Shortly after 10 o'clock this morning intelligence of the death of Associate Justice Matthews reached the supreme court room proper. The officer immediately authorized the draping in black of the seat lately occupied by the associate justice.

When the hour of 12 arrived the court assembled as usual. Upon taking the seat, the chief justice made the following announcement:

"The court has received the melancholy intelligence of the death of its beloved member, Justice Matthews, in this city, at 10 o'clock this morning. No business, therefore, will be transacted and the court will adjourn until Tuesday."

Justice Matthews had been an invalid for years. During the winter of 1885 he frequently complained of indigestion and muscular rheumatism, and as the spring wore on began to suffer from obstinate diarrhea, from which he lost a great deal of strength and flesh. At this time it was thought that his great devotion to work was to a large degree responsible for his illness, as no doubt it was, and, acting upon the advice of his physicians and friends, who had great hopes that a change of air might prove of lasting benefit, he went to Massachusetts, stopping for some time at Lenox. Then at Nantucket, but he continued to lose ground. During the summer he had several attacks of muscular rheumatism associated with high fever, which would confine him to his bed several days at a time.

On his return home he began to improve somewhat, but continued to suffer from intercurrent attacks, which always greatly reduced his strength and flesh. These came on at intervals of three or four weeks. Between them he would have periods of marked improvement, but several times when Doctor Johnston was confidently hoping to be able to get him out another attack would prostrate him and leave him weaker than ever.

During last February he suffered greatly with a complication of cystitis and iritis. About this time an ulcer of the cornea appeared with an effusion into the pleural cavity attributable to his rheumatic condition. He recovered, however, from both of these latter complications.

About eight weeks previous to his final illness he had been absolutely free from pain and his physician and family had great hopes of his ultimate recovery. That hope was modified, however, by the fact that, while he had a good appetite and good digestion, he did not gain in flesh, although his strength improved daily. At this time he sat up during a part of each day, and walked about his room into the other rooms on the same floor. But about the 4th of March he had an acute attack of high fever, which lasted several days and which very much exhausted him. After this passed off he seemed to be improving, with a return of appetite, but a recurrence of chills and fever, associated with cystitis, still further added to his exhaustion and debility.

During all this time his pulse was exceedingly feeble, and the action of the heart was sustained only by remedies administered for that purpose.

Yesterday afternoon he had a prolonged chill and a high fever, which brought on intense local suffering. This was followed in a few hours by another chill, from which he could not rally. He continued to lose strength and died a few minutes after 10 o'clock this morning.

The immediate cause of death was exhaustion of the heart and congestion of the kidneys, with a partial suppression of the urine.

EXPRESSIONS OF GRIEF.

Justice Field, who has known Justice Matthews intimately, more so probably than any other member of the court, expressed to a representative of the associated press, after court adjourned, the sentiments of himself and his associates upon the death of their brother justice.

Said he: "The members of the supreme court deeply deplore the death of Justice Matthews. They had become attached to him in an unusual degree. They recognized his great legal ability, but even more they appreciated the warmth of his affectionate nature. He was an industrious judge, and his decisions exhibited wide research and thorough culture. He was an able lawyer, a wise judge and a Christian gentleman."

The death of Justice Matthews was the subject of conversation among the senators, many of whom had served with him during his term in the senate, and on every hand words of regret and eulogy were paid.

Senator Sherman said: "The death of Mr. Justice Matthews comes with a shock to me. He was a man thoroughly fitted for the position he occupied, a trained lawyer, with a judicial mind of the highest order. It is no disparagement to his associates to say he was their equal in point of equity. His love of justice was intuitive and his decisions were mathematical demonstrations. He maintained the position for which his mind was best fitted. Most of his friends conceded that he was not a politician, but no one doubted his being a great judge. His death will be sincerely mourned by a multitude of friends and his place will be hard to fill."

Senator Teller said: "Justice Matthews's appointment was an excellent one and he did not disappoint his friends. He was a man of commanding talent. I served with him in the senate and became quite intimate with him."

Senator Harris said: "I had known Justice Matthews personally for many years. He was a man of absolute purity and integrity and a lawyer of great ability."

Senator Mitchell said: "I became acquainted with him twelve years ago when he entered the senate, and served with him two years on the committee on railroads. There I had every opportunity to become intimately acquainted with him and have known him ever since as senator and justice of the supreme court. His death is a great loss to the bench and to the country."

Mr. Hoar said: "There was some difference of opinion as to the expediency of Justice Matthews's appointment when he went upon the bench. This was due to the fear that his judicial opinions might be biased in favor of the great railroad interests which he had so largely represented as counsel. I never myself shared this fear for a moment. Judge Matthews has taken his place in the highest rank of the magistrates who have sat upon the bench of the supreme court of the United States from the beginning of the government. It has never occurred to anybody since his appointment to question his absolute impartiality. Every intelligent man will now agree he was in his rightful and appropriate place in that tribunal to whose arbitration all the interests of the country are submitted and which keeps the forces of state and nation alike within their appointed bounds."

MESSAGES OF CONDOLENCE.

A large number of messages of condolence were received during the afternoon, among them the following:

EXECUTIVE MANSION,
WASHINGTON, March 22.

Dear Mrs. Matthews: I have heard with the most profound regret of the death of your most honored husband. The sense of loss and bereavement which you feel will be shared by our people. I have known Justice Matthews for many years and had a very high appreciation of his character and learning. That you may be comforted and sustained in this hour of trial is my most sincere prayer. Very truly yours, BENJ. HARRISON.

FUNERAL ARRANGEMENTS.

The arrangements for the funeral were practically concluded this evening. Religious services will be held at his late residence on Connecticut avenue Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. They will be brief and simple, and will be conducted by Rev. Dr. Hamlin, pastor of the Church of the Covenant. At the conclusion the remains will be removed to the Baltimore & Ohio station for transportation to Glendale, Ohio, by way of Cincinnati. Religious service will be held there at the Christ Episcopal church, under conduct of Dr. Price, rector, Tuesday afternoon, and the remains will then be removed to Spring Grove Cemetery for interment. The members of the supreme court will accompany the remains as honorary pall bearers, and the messengers of the court will be active pallbearers.

THE FLAGS OF NEW YORK AT HALF MAST.

NEW YORK, March 22.—On hearing of the death of Justice Matthews Mayor Grant ordered the national, state and municipal flags to be hoisted at half mast over the city hall, out of respect to the memory of the distinguished jurist.

PROFOUND REGRET AT COLUMBUS.

COLUMBUS, O., March 22.—The most profound regret was apparent in this city over the death of Justice Matthews. Both houses of the general assembly adopted appropriate resolutions and adjourned to Monday. The flag on the capitol was placed at half mast.

THE VACANCY ON THE BENCH.

Justice Matthews's Death Will Prolong the Session of the Senate.

WASHINGTON, March 22.—The probable effect of the death of Justice Matthews upon the length of the special session of the senate was discussed to-day.

Sherman's announcement yesterday that the president would be enabled to let the senators go home next week was received with great satisfaction by a large majority of the senators who were desirous of leaving Washington, but the sad event of to-day may cause a postponement. It is said by one senator to-day that the filling of this vacancy is an important matter, and that the president will want time to consider it carefully. The court has been without the presence of Justice Matthews for almost a year and it will shortly adjourn for the justices to go on their several circuits and the services of an associate justice are in demand for the expedition of the business.

The succession to the vacancy is already discussed, there being two programmes laid out by those who talk. One being that Justice Gresham, now judge of the circuit comprising the states of Wisconsin, Illinois and Indiana, will be nominated for associate justice. He would in turn be succeeded by Judge Woods, leaving a vacancy to be filled in the district of Indiana.

The other programme is Miller to the supreme bench, secretary Noble to the head of the department of justice, and Assistant Postmaster General Clarkson to the interior department.

THE SEAL FISHERIES.

A Proclamation by President Harrison In Relation to Them.

WASHINGTON, March 22.—The following proclamation was issued late this afternoon by the president of the United States of America: Proclamation—The following provisions of the laws of the United States are hereby published for the information of all concerned:

Section 1956 of the revised statutes, chapter 3, enacts that: No person shall kill any otter, mink, marten, sable or fur seal, or other fur bearing animals, within the limits of Alaska territory, or in the waters thereof, and every person guilty thereof shall for each offense be fined not less than $200 or more than $1000, or be imprisoned not more than six months, or both, and all vessels with their tackle, apparel, furniture and cargo, found engaged in violation thereof, shall be forfeited. But the secretary of the treasury shall have power to authorize the killing of any such mink, marten, sable or other fur bearing animals, or fur seals, under such regulations as he may prescribe, and it shall be the duty of the secretary to prevent the killing of any fur seal and to provide for the execution of the provisions of this section until it is otherwise provided by law, nor shall he break the special privilege under this section.

Section 3 of the act entitled "an act to provide for the protection of the salmon fisheries of Alaska" approved March 2, 1889, provides that: Section 1956 of the revised statutes of the United States is hereby declared to include and apply to all the dominion of the United States, in the waters of Behring sea, and it shall be the duty of the president at a timely season in each year to issue his proclamation and cause the same to be published for one month at least, in one newspaper (if any such there be) published at each United States port of entry on the Pacific coast, warning all persons against entering such waters for the purpose of violating the provisions of said section, and he shall also cause one or more vessels of the United States to diligently cruise said waters and arrest all persons and seize all vessels found to be, or to have been engaged in any violation of the laws of the United States therein.

Now, therefore I, Benjamin Harrison, president of the United States, in pursuance to the above revised statutes hereby warn all persons against entering the waters of Behring sea within the dominion of the United States for the purpose of violating the provisions of said section 1956 of the revised statutes, and I hereby proclaim that all persons found to be or to have been engaged in any violation of the laws of the United States in said waters will be arrested and punished as above provided and that all vessels so employed with their tackle, apparel, furniture and cargoes will be seized and forfeited.

In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington this 21st day of March, 1889, and of the independence of the United States the 113th.

BENJAMIN HARRISON, President.
JAMES G. BLAINE, Secretary of State.

NUMEROUS NOMINATIONS.

The Name of Corporal Tanner Said To Be Among the List.

WASHINGTON, March 22.—When the senate meets to-morrow a large batch of nominations will probably be received from the president. The announcement of the death of Justice Matthews brought about an adjournment of the senate to-day while in executive session.

Secretary Pruden was standing at the door waiting to be recognized. He had with him an envelope, the bulk of which indicated a large number of nominations. Among them, according to general report, was that of Corporal Tanner, of Brooklyn, to be commissioner of pensions.

CORPORAL TANNER'S NOMINATION.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 22.—The Examiner's Washington special says: Corporal Tanner of Brooklyn was to-day nominated as commissioner of pensions. The nomination was not made public at the senate, owing to the adjournment of that body at the moment. Assistant Secretary Pruden appeared at the main entrance with a batch of nominations in his hand. He returned to the White house with the seal on the envelope unbroken. They will be returned to the senate to-morrow, with such additional nominations as may be made in the interim.

Corporal Tanner's appointment was agreed upon a fortnight ago. It was withheld, however, for various reasons until the president satisfied himself that further delay would be only an unnecessary reflection upon Mr. Tanner, and it was decided at the cabinet meeting to-day to send the nomination to the senate at once.

Later in the day telegrams of congratulation by the score came pouring in upon Mr. Tanner from every part of the country and his apartments at the Ebbitt house to-night were crowded for hours with Grand Army and other people who called to pay their respects to the new commissioner.

EVARTS MAY SUCCEED PHELPS.

WASHINGTON, March 22.—An impression is growing here that Senator Evarts, of New York, will succeed Phelps as our representative to England. It is true that New York has been given two good missions, but there is no reason why she should not have a third, if President Harrison cares to bestow it upon her.

A ST. PAUL OFFICE.

WASHINGTON, March 22.—Secretary Windom has recommended Charles G. Edwards for appointment as collector of customs at St. Paul and it is expected that his nomination will be sent to the senate to-morrow.

FOR GOVERNOR OF UTAH.

WASHINGTON, March 22.—George E. Whitney, of Oakland, brother-in-law of Justice Field, is a candidate for governor of Utah and is said to be backed for the place by the California delegation.

THE CHINESE MISSION.

Chester Holcomb Said To Be the Only Candidate in the Field.

WASHINGTON, March 22.—At present it is said that the only candidate for the Chinese mission is Chester Holcomb, of Connecticut, who has been secretary of legation and interpreter at Peking for twenty years and can talk, read and write the Chinese language. He was a classmate of Warner Miller and Charles Emory Smith, at Union college and graduated in 1861.

Holcomb went from college into the war, and shortly after he was mustered out went to China where he has since resided. He has no political backing, but hopes to get the position on his merits for during the twenty years that he has been secretary of legation he has served as minister more than one third of the time.

SQUIRE WAS TOO AMBITIOUS.

Mr. Harrison Frankly Told Him That He Considered That an Objection.

WASHINGTON, March 22.—Watson C. Squire retired gracefully from the candidacy for governor of Washington territory. It is said that Harrison frankly told him that it was understood that he [illegible] position as a stepping stone to a United States senatorship at the proper time, and for that reason only he could not appoint him. Squire admitted that he was aspiring to senatorial honors, and thanking Harrison for his frankness, he withdrew from the contest.

CHARGES OF BRIBERY.

An Interesting Investigation at the Puyallup Agency.

MANY INDIANS WERE PAID MONEY

To Exert Their Influence in Favor of Granting the Right of Way, but None Appear to Have Been Bribed to Vote.

TACOMA, W. T., March 22.—There was great excitement around the government buildings at the Puyallup Indian reservation to-day. About 100 braves and klootchmen were clustered around on the grass outside, enjoying themselves in the sunshine, while inside Agent Eells' office some score or more were talking in Chinook and listening to arguments in favor of upsetting the vote taken at the election on Tuesday, refusing right of way through the reservation to the Puyallup Valley railroad.

This road was proposed to be built from Sumner to Tacoma, but the company asks now for a right of way along the whole water front of Commencement bay, opposite Tacoma, on the reservation side, to Brown's Point, giving a water frontage of about five miles, and completely shutting off the Indians from their water front. A map filed with the secretary of the interior, but not yet approved, shows that the railway as now surveyed never leaves the Puyallup reservation after once entering it, and on reaching Commencement bay follows the United States meander line, so that the company will acquire all riparian rights which should accrue to the Indians owning land on the water front.

When first talked about, the road was to be a simple train road between Sumner, Puyallup and Tacoma, and on that account was regarded with much favor in Tacoma and along the route generally. Those who now claim to know what the scheme of the promoters really is, regard the whole matter with no indulgent eye. The riparian rights on the water front, asked by the company, are said in Tacoma to be worth at least half a million dollars a mile, or two and a half millions in all, and the company does not now propose to come to Tacoma at all, but remain on the east side of the Puyallup river.

When the election took place on Tuesday and after speeches had been made by the chiefs and braves of the tribe, Agent Eells called twelve Indians up and charged them with receiving bribes from one George J. Dougherty, agent of the Puyallup Valley railroad. One and all confessed, and those who had not spent the money paid it into Agent Eells's hands.

THE INVESTIGATION.

After the vote was decided against granting the right of way, Frank O. Meeker, representing the Puyallup Valley Railroad Company, filed a petition with the agent for an investigation of the charges of bribery, alleging that the agent had improperly charged an offence, and had intimidated the Indians from voting for the right of way.

The agent granted the hearing which took place to-day. Agent Eells presided, and there were present head chief Tommy Lane and his counsel, Ezra M. Meeker, president, and George McAllister, secretary, of the railway, and some twenty or thirty others.

The whole forenoon was frittered away in making objections on behalf of petitioners, and having the same overruled, and it was not till 1 o'clock that actual business commenced.

Meeker was anxious to put Agent Eells in the position of defendant in the case, but had finally to proceed and endeavor to disprove the charges of bribery.

The first witness called was George J. Dougherty, agent of the company, who, after some preliminary sparring, was examined by Frank Meeker, and said he had been employed by the company to go round among the Indians, find out who were friendly to the road, and employ them. The arrangement made was that ten Indians should receive $1 a day to persuade other Indians to vote for the railway. He had paid some Indians and offered to pay others. Some kicked and refused to take money, but he paid a number of Indians two dollars each, to fifty Indians, one dollar each, and had promised money to four more when the cash ran out, also ten dollars to "Fat Jack" for making a speech in favor of the railroad at a council meeting and twelve dollars to Wash Sykes and fifteen dollars to James Coates for making similar speeches. In each case he promised the men three dollars a day from the time they were spoken to till the council meeting, and ten dollars each additional if the railroad got the right of way. He gave the two dollars as earnest money, and the payment for speeches was extra.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

A number of questions were put by Agent Eells to show direct bribery, and finally the following question:

"From your intimate acquaintance with the Indians on this reservation and your knowledge of their feelings towards this company and this road, do you believe that any considerable number of them would have signed their consent if the money had not been paid and promised?"

Answer—It is my opinion that there would not have been a considerable number, from the very fact that there was a strong opposition to the road, and that it was stated that the company wanted to get through for nothing, and Mr. Meeker was held up as a terrible fellow, and it was so stated in their meeting.

Question—Then you do believe that the payment of this money and the promises made by you for the payments of other moneys did induce numbers of these Indians to consent that this road should be built through the reservation, who would otherwise not have done so?

Answer—Yes, sir. I believe that we had a very popular opinion against us throughout the whole tribe. The president was painted up as a terrible man, a man full of tricks.

Question—Were you employed by the company, and furnished with the money by the company, for the purpose of changing their opinion and consent by its use in this way?

Answer—Yes, sir.

Re-examined by Meeker: "Did you pay any money to anyone to work for the company who had not first expressed a willingness that the railroad should be built through the reservation?"

Answer—No, not one.

Charles H. Ross was the next witness, and described how he engaged an Indian named John Swan to vote for the right of way by promising him $2 a day. Swan afterwards went back on the contract.

TESTIMONY OF INDIANS.

Tommy Lane, head chief, was then sworn, and said Dougherty had offered to give him any money he would ask to work for the road, but he told him he would rather have his head cut off first. He offered him any amount if he would change his mind and join the railroad company.

Tyee Dick said Dougherty paid him $2 for signing his name towards the railroad and made him a promise of $3 a day and $10 in addition if they carried the vote in the council. He objected to the road but took the $2 to see what they were trying to do.

Augustus Kautz gave similar testimony but said he got mad when Dougherty offered him money, as he considered it an insult.

James Cross was another Indian tempted in like manner but he and David Willard resisted the allurements of the silver tongued Dougherty.

Ed Richards took $2 to find out what Dougherty was after, and gave the money to Mr. Eells.

Joe Frederick refused the tempting offers but "Fat Jack" took $10 to speak in the council meeting in favor of the road, though he had objected to the granting of a right of way.

Squally [illegible] said he was paid $2, but he did not know what for.

George Jackson, who also received $2, understood that it was to vote with the company for the right of way.

[illegible] Thomson was offered money but refused it.

At this stage the representatives of the company declined, as it was late, to wait longer in the agency office and hear more testimony. They will offer evidence in rebuttal. Frank O. Meeker was anxious to have it recognized that the matter was not bribery under the code, as none of the Indians were among the classes mentioned as being liable to penalty for taking bribes.

THE PROCLAMATION.

WASHINGTON, March 22.—Secretary Noble ... this afternoon ... would ... signed ... to-morrow.

THE SITUATION IS CRITICAL.

ST. LOUIS, March —A special to the Republic from ... Kan., says: Reports ... from Oklahoma ... state that the boomers who have disappeared from their claims and have been in concealment in the woods or ... Indian reservations have returned with the withdrawal of the soldiers. Each train brings hundreds that have been hanging along the border in desperation.

The excitement at Purcell and on the border is intense, and people have left their business to hang around telegraph and newspaper offices to hear of President Harrison's issuing a proclamation. The number of boomers is augmented by train and wagon loads of would-be-settlers and prospectors.

They have been expecting the proclamation each day and when night comes mutterings and disappointment and lamentations are heard on every hand. Of the favorable reports to-day they hardly know what to say, as they have so often been disappointed.

Colonel Crocker, who has labored to hold back the invaders, stated as follows: "Should the president hesitate much longer blood will be shed. There are 40,000 white people in the Cherokee strip alone waiting to take up claims in the territory, and disappointment has followed disappointment until they are becoming desperate."

The boomers are greatly agitated over the recent efforts to prevent them from going in. Parties who have recently arrived are taking the names of those who have violated the provisions of the bill by entering upon the lands and are intending to appear against them to defeat their filings.

An old man, who had watched a piece of land for six years, to-day stated that a band of almost 1000 old boomers had been formed and that anything short of dispossessing any of them would be death to the informant. This league, he says, is secret and is growing in numbers each day, and whether expected or not, they will hold their claims by force. The situation is certainly critical.

OUTLAWS AT BAY

Surrounded by Large Crowds of Pennsylvania Vigilantes

UNIONTOWN, Pa., March 22.—A large party of vigilantes from Uniontown, York and other points have gone into the mountains near Markleysburg, where the McClellandtown robbers are supposed to be camped, with the intention of capturing the outlaws. Both sides are well armed and if there is a conflict there will probably be much blood shed. Should an assault fail to capture the inmates of the camp, the vigilantes propose to surround it and starve out the gang, shooting any one who makes his appearance with arms. The camp is thirty miles distant.

This evening word was received here that the vigilantes had tried to force an entrance into a log house where the robbers are at bay, during which shots were exchanged on both sides without injury to anyone. The robbers refuse to surrender and are prepared to sell their lives as dearly as possible and to die if they cannot escape under cover of darkness. Nine men and three women constitute the party in the house. The attacking party has the house well surrounded.

The intelligence that the band was corralled spread like wild fire here, and soon Sheriff Miller had started for the scene of difficulty with a large posse ... CORRESPONDENT KLEIN'S VIEWS

He Is Anxious to Go to Berlin and Testify Before the Conference

NEW YORK, March 22.—John C. Klein, the Samoan correspondent, has arrived here. In a conversation he said: "I am ready and indeed anxious to go to Berlin and give testimony before the conference regarding my connection with Samoan matters. I also think ex-Consul General Sewall, whose official acts cannot fail to be approved by every honest American, should also be sent by the government to Berlin. I hope Blaine will consider it advisable and send us both to Germany."

Another point to which he desires to call attention is that Dr. Knappe and Brandeis, the German officers, have been recalled presumably in disgrace, but really that they might be present in Berlin at the sittings of the conference before a decision would be made. The appointment of Steubel to replace Dr. Knappe as German consul general has been accompanied by an intimation that he will turn out an improvement on his predecessor. The German squadron has been placed under his authority, and Klein avers that there is little doubt that he will use force against Samoa, while abstaining from openly annoying the Americans or English.

The repertoire embraces "Hamlet," "The Merchant of Venice," "Richelieu," "Much Ado About Nothing," "Macbeth," "Othello" and "Mary Stuart," and when Booth plays "The Fool's Revenge," in which Modjeska will not appear, she is to have the privilege of appearing on the same night in a play of her own selection.

BISMARCK AND SAMOA

Dr Knappe Blamed for All the High Handed Acts of the Germans

BERLIN, March —The government has issued a white book on Samoan affairs. It shows that ... Bismarck ... to Herr Steubel ... Germany to Samoa ... Dr. Knappe, his predecessor ... office as ... Emperor William's policy, with which Knappe had been well acquainted. Knappe, Bismarck wrote, apparently lost his head owing to the letters from Herr Brandon, Tamasese's prime minister, published in the last white book, and the presence of ... men-of-war ... Referring to Knappe's ... proposal to annex Samoa, Bismarck reiterates his views that to seek to effect a change in the political situation of Samoa without the consent of England would not accord with the treaty arrangements. Knappe's action in regard to the question of annexation is incomprehensible because his expert ... instructions ought to have shown him that his desire to annex Samoa was opposed to the policy ... by the chancellor in conformity with the emperor's intention.

Knappe justified the arrest of the Englishman Gallieu, on the ground that the latter recommended Mataafa to apply to Grey, ex-governor of New Zealand, for assistance. An investigation proved that Gallieu was not aware of the significance of his acts.

Bismarck, in a letter to Herr Steubel, further said Dr. Knappe was neither authorized to declare war or martial law in any case. There could be no question of enforcing the latter against foreigners. His conduct both towards the agents of other powers and the natives was devoid of the calmness and coolness indispensable for a correct official. The assumption that the German government had authorized such procedure on his part rests on a willful misconception or mistake, which it was difficult to explain.

Dressed Beef All the Way From Kansas City—A Pointer for Capitalists—A Write-Up for the City—The Halibut Industry.

SEATTLE, March 22.—It's a treat to see this wonderful finely located and thriving city from a steamer's deck, as the vessel moves along Elliott's bay, from the time Alki point is turned until a landing is effected at the wharf. Nearly the whole city forms a beautiful hillside panorama. At night, when the electric lights are flashing and their reflections dancing in the waters of the bay, the picture is just as pleasing, if not as picturesque.

Seattle does not cover as much territory as Tacoma, and the spreading out of the latter to the south and west, with the big bluffs on the water front intervening, hides from the view of the tourist the business part of the busy city. Indeed one might pass through Tacoma at night on the platform of a railroad train and get but half a glimpse of the town. The landing at the wharves of the two cities is so entirely different as to draw marked attention.

Last Wednesday evening I saw 200 persons land at the Tacoma steamship wharf at 8:15 from the magnificent steamer Olympian. After threading their way across railroad tracks and through trains of freight cars, most of the passengers who wanted to ride up the long steep hill to the city found at the end of the route, three horse cars without any propelling power. The "bob tails" had actually stopped running at that hour and the passengers had to walk up the hill or pay a dollar to ride about six blocks. At Seattle one could walk three blocks from the landing and take a cable car to almost any part of the city. They do not stop running at 8:15 in the evening either.

By the way, the cities of Portland and Tacoma should at least feel ashamed to be beaten as they have been by Seattle, in the matter of rapid transit. The cable cars on Front street, the second line of the kind in the city, which have been crowded ever since they began running ten days ago, are of the latest approved pattern, and the road is a good one. I met C. J. Kershaw, the Tacoma wharf warehouse man and capitalist, near the Occidental yesterday, and as we watched the crowded cars go by he said, "That is one of the best constructed cable roads I ever saw." He ought to know as he has seen other roads of the kind in operation in Chicago and elsewhere.

But to get back to the wharves. There does not appear to be the least bit of public spirit manifested toward the city for the comfort of the traveling public at the Tacoma railroad and steamboat wharf and the impression it leaves upon the traveler is so marked that it leaks out in vigorous expletives. I heard more swearing to the square inch on Wednesday night when the Olympian came in than I have heard since Cleveland's defeat. The latter was by democrats alone, but the Wednesday night symposium was by all sorts of people irrespective of race, religion or politics.

"What kind of business have you been doing since you started?" I asked of the superintendent of the Front-street cable road.

"We have been accommodating all the Seattle people every day and about one-half of Tacoma comes over to get a decent ride," he answered.

The latter part of his answer was a home-thrust, but I told him that Tacoma was going to have cable cars running by next year, and that a stable had already been built on the location donated by the city council or destiny for a power-house.

There is a sort of fascination about a ride in the open-air cable car that can scarcely be resisted. I was informed that many of the married folks of Seattle with their younger children had invariably taken two or three trips a day ever since the road started and that travel was steadily increasing as was shown by the daily receipts. It looks dangerous to be swiftly climbing steep hills, and doubly dangerous going down again, but there's where the [illegible] comes in, "Bless me, ain't it pleasant riding on the rail!"

"Has the Seattle, Lake Shore & Eastern railroad abandoned all idea of getting through the Cascade mountains?" I asked of J. R. McDonald, president of the company, at the Occidental yesterday.

"Not by any means," was his reply.

Continuing, he said: "We are going through the Cady pass, and work will begin again in forty days, both on the extension eastward and also northward to connect with the Canadian Pacific. You can say for me that the road is to be built without a doubt."

General Adna Anderson, formerly of the Northern Pacific, is in Seattle looking the ground over for the Lake Shore, Seattle & Eastern road, and is to report to the New York capitalists, who are backing the road, the feasibility of the undertaking. I was informed by a well-known railroad man that General Anderson, who was familiar with the proposed route through the Cascades would make a favorable report, that $4,000,000 would be put at the disposal of the company, and that 2000 men would be at work on both ends of the road before the 1st of June.

There is considerable feeling in Seattle against C. H. Kittinger, secretary of the Board of Trade, who recently called a meeting of the citizens to subscribe for $[illegible] of bonds toward completing the road to the [illegible] border, and leaving the impression that the work of getting the road through the Cascades eastward had been abandoned. "That call of Mr. Kittinger has hurt the town considerably, and it has hurt him, too, as he wanted to be the [illegible]."

Said a well-known business man: "President McDonald and party who were East had a talk with the New York capitalists and know what they are about, and if Mr. Kittinger had consulted them first his meeting would not have been called."

Mr. Reavis, of the New York World, is here engaged in getting a special write up of the city for that paper. I learn it is at the instance of W. C. Hill, of Washington City, the holder of a large amount of Seattle scrip. Mr. Reavis is an accomplished writer and it will be quite a boon for the Queen City to be pictured in the newspaper with the largest circulation in the world.

Here is a pointer for capitalists in the Kittitas and Yakima valleys. With thousands of cattle on their thousand hills, Phil Armour, the beef king, is actually shipping dressed beef right through those valleys on Northern Pacific trains to the Puget sound country. The beef comes from Kansas City. [illegible] Eastern Washington and the capitalists who want to make a good investment. Why not kill and dress the meat in the fertile valleys of the new state instead of sending the cattle to Kansas City to be killed and then shipping it back dressed? The second cargo of this dressed beef arrived in Tacoma a few days ago, the first two weeks since. There was but one car load in the last containing thirty head of cattle and forty-five head of hogs weighing about 17,300 pounds.

"What do you pay for it?" I asked of the butcher who said he was handling it, and he thought it was as good as the home product.

"It is laid down in Tacoma at 8 cents a pound, which is 1 cent a pound cheaper than we can get it from those in the killing business here," he replied.

One cent less a pound, of course, amounts to considerable where large quantities are bought. The butcher informed me that the business was increasing and that the third cargo, expected in a few days, would be larger than the previous one.

If shipping dressed beef into Washington territory is not like carrying coals to Newcastle, I don't what is.

There is a very large firm in Seattle that receives a vast amount of green hams from Kansas City and Chicago—as high as eight car loads a month, which they cure—one half of the establishment is devoted to curing halibut and the other half to hams and bacon. Halibut was formerly sent East to be cured and then shipped out here again. The Seattle firm has six schooners engaged in the trade.

"Do ladies buy real estate?" I asked of a real estate man. "They do here to a greater extent than any place I ever saw," he replied. I was inquisitive on this point, because I saw six ladies come into a real estate office where I was seated to inquire about property, but they did not buy any. After awhile I reflected that the firm of Crawford & Conover consisted of two good looking bachelors. Perhaps that had something to do with the inquiries. C. M. B.

HE SHOULD BE GATHERED IN.

That Clackamas County Horse Thief Again—He Shoots a Man and a Boy.

Clackamas county is infested by a horse thief who appears to be ubiquitous, and is either the most reckless and daring of his class or one of the greatest fools on record. He appears to have no object in life but to steal a horse, ride him till he is used up, and then steal another. He varies this amusement by breaking into houses, stealing guns, food, etc., and taking naps in barns and out-of the way places.

Some days since he was surprised by a constable and posse, but discharged a pistol at them and scared them off. The next heard of him he turned up at the house of Mr. West, near Damascus, where he ordered some breakfast. He was armed with a Winchester rifle and two big revolvers. When his meal was ready he placed his rifle in a corner and took his seat at the table. Mr. West had read of the horse thief in THE OREGONIAN, and imagining that this fellow was the man, made a sneak on the rifle, and leveling it on his guest ordered him to throw up his hands.

This was a bold scheme on the part of Mr. West, and would doubtless have proven successful, had not the thief taken the precaution to have an empty cartridge in the rifle, and, while Mr. West was drawing a bead on him, he drew one of his revolvers and shot West through the arm, and when Mr. West's son came running in shot him through the hand. The robber then left without waiting to finish his breakfast, and at a neighbor's took a fresh horse, at the next place a new saddle, and was once more in the field fully equipped for service.

People in Clackamas county who contemplate entertaining this horse thief should have their own shotguns well loaded with buckshot, handy behind the door. It is about time this fellow was gathered in, and if he once allows himself to get into the clutches of some of the farmers he has robbed, his carcass will soon grace one of the tall pines so plentiful in Clackamas, and the county will be saved the expense of a trial.

RIVER AND COAST TRAFFIC.

The Augusta is at Astoria, and has a big lot of material for the new lighthouse at Cape Meares.

The barkentine Mary Winkelman, 456 tons, has been chartered to load cannery supplies for Alaska.

The steamer Oregon left San Francisco Thursday morning at 10 o'clock and is expected to arrive in port this evening.

The State of California, which left here last Wednesday night, is expected to arrive in San Francisco this morning.

The British Bark Fiery Cross cleared for England yesterday morning, having on board a cargo of 65,058 bushels of wheat.

Thursday, says an Astoria paper, the steamer Michigan sailed for San Francisco from Astoria. The British ship Hornby Castle, 1125 tons, arrived in from Iquique.

The ship British India, from Hull arrived in port yesterday with a cargo of 1199 tons of coal consigned to Meyer, Wilson & Co. She sailed on the 27th of September.

The light house tender Manzanita has returned to Astoria, after having been in service at the Sound for several weeks. While at the Sound, the little steamer was at the disposal of the United States naval commissioners.

The new O. R. & N. Co.'s steamer, being built for the use of the upper Willamette, is nearing completion. The engine and other machinery will be put in within two weeks, and in less than a month it is expected that the vessel will be ready to launch.

The steamer Columbia is still in quarantine in San Francisco bay, and the probabilities is that she will have to remain there until the two weeks' limit is passed. The authorities here scout the idea of smallpox having taken a hold upon the passengers. They give it as their opinion that it is nothing more serious than a mild case of chicken-pox, and consider the detention of the boat an inexcusable injustice.

The bark Margaret arrived in Thursday and docked at the Main street wharf, says the Astorian. She has made a remarkably quick trip. She left San Francisco Sunday, and yesterday morning was off the mouth of the river, four days out. She has pig tin, lead, salt, 10,000 cans and a large lot of miscellaneous cannery supplies. She has been chartered by the Russian-American Packing Company, and will finish loading here for Afognak, Alaska. There is a whole cannery building, framed and ready to put up, on the deck, that she will take on. She will get away about Wednesday next. She will be followed by the steamer Afognak, belonging to the same company. F. R. Stokes, of Foard & Stokes, is superintendent of the company. He will leave San Francisco to-day, will be here Sunday and will join the vessel here. He will be accompanied by J. R. Hillstrap.

PERSONAL.

Misses Grace and Eva Oakes, of Baker City, who have been visiting friends in this city, left yesterday afternoon for Roseburg.

Sam C. Mott, manager of the Ben Cotton company, arrived in the city last night. Mr. Mott is staying at the Gilman house.

Major T. H. Handbury, United States engineers, accompanied the naval commission on their tour of inspection of the Columbia.

Mr. F. M. Malone, traveling freight agent of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad at Miles City, Montana, and wife are in the city.

Samuel Elmore, the well-known canneryman, who has been East for two months, is in the city. He does not think the outlook for canneryman this year a very brilliant one.

Mr. J. Reed, assistant manager of the California Powder Works, is in the city visiting friends. He contemplates making some investments here, as he has great confidence in the future of Portland.

OREGON IN PITTSBURG.

The Products of Our State Greatly Admired in the Iron City.

A School Principal Writes for Samples for His Botanical Department—Clever Compliments.

Some time since the Oregon Immigration Board, at the request of the city ticket agent of the Union Pacific railway, Pittsburg, forwarded a small, though complete, exhibit of products to that city. The following letter, received by the secretary yesterday, explains the matter further:

PITTSBURG, March 16.

Dear Sir: I am pleased to acknowledge receipt of two boxes specimens of Oregon products which were checked through. They are now tastefully arranged in our large corner show-window, Fourth avenue and Wood street, and your books are placed prominently and are given to those making proper inquiry. The exhibit creates numerous inquiries, and is much admired. Thanking you, I remain yours very truly,

H. E. PASSAVANT, T. F. & P. Agent,
Union Pacific R'y Co., 400 Navy st., Pittsburg.

Since that exhibit has been placed in position by the officials of that road, it has attracted considerable attention. Great admiration is expressed for it by all who see it.

DESIRES AN EXHIBIT.

The subjoined letter from a professor in the High school has been received and shows that a collection of Oregon grains and grasses would be a very acceptable gift from the board and would be encased in glass jars and treasured among the permanent exhibits of the school museum:

PITTSBURG, March 15.

Secretary of the Oregon Immigration Board, Portland, Oregon—Dear sir: I am teacher of botany in the above named school and have been trying for some time, without success, to get a collection of Western grains and grasses. To-day I noticed in the window of a railroad office in this city a fine display of grains, seeds, etc, in jars, grains in the head and grasses furnished by your board, with a view to showing us the kind of country you have. It occurred to me that I might be able to secure a similar exhibit for the use of our pupils of the High School. We have about 700 pupils in attendance drawn from every part of the city and from every phase of society. If you will send me such an exhibit as that referred to above for use in my class room, each jar, etc., bearing your own label, and also a liberal supply of your pamphlets, "The New Empire," I will agree to place the claims of your board and the "New Empire," by means of the pupils and the press, before Pittsburg in a way that may possibly do you good. Seven hundred families shall discuss the subject at any rate.

We have good glass cases in which such a display would appear to advantage, and it would become one of our permanent collections. The grains in head, and grasses, I could mount in large glass front frames, with recesses to receive them.

Hoping to hear from you favorably upon this proposition I remain very respectfully yours,

W. S. JACKMAN, Dept. of Biology,
Pittsburg Central High School.

The Immigration board are making preparations to send a small though complete exhibit to this high school in Pittsburg and it is known that the favor will be duly appreciated.

GLOOMY FOR THE FISH WHEELS.

Water in the Columbia Very Low—Salmon Fishing Prospects.

The outlook for the owners of fishing wheels at the Cascades is rather gloomy at present. The river is very low, and if, as is generally supposed, there is but little snow in the mountains there is little prospect of any very high water this season. The lowest wheel is now twelve feet above the water, and to reach the next the river must rise twenty-five feet.

The chances are that the greater number of wheels will not go round this season. There are to be only twenty-three canneries operated on the river this season, against twenty-eight last year. The canners will be in luck if their output amounts to 300,000 cases this season, and 150,000 cases have already been engaged by English buyers. Including sales of the Alaska pack some 200,000 cases are sold for future delivery. The American market is not yet supplied, and there will be some required for the Australian market.

The salmon will cost the cannerymen a high price this year, as many are offering premiums to fishermen in the shape of free boats, free nets, etc., so the canned product should bring a good price to yield any profit.

PRIVATE WORDS FOR WOMEN

The eminent and successful electro-magnetic physicians, Drs. Darrin, have discovered and perfected a system of treatment that has caused a revolution in the treatment of female diseases. Wherever their treatment is tested and known it has done away with all dosing with nauseous drugs and surgical operations whereby so many precious lives have been lost.

As a discovery it ranks with Harvey's discovery of the circulation of the blood. It has proved in more than a thousand cases of the worst kind to be a positive cure for the following female diseases: Ovarian tumors, polypus ulceration and dropsy of womb, inflammation, congestion and falling of womb, leucorrhœa, painful and suppressed menstruation, flooding, frequent urination, bearing down pains, backache, headache, hacking cough, melancholy, absence of ambition or desire to live, or, in fact, any complaint having its origin in a disordered state of the generative and accompanying organs, whether from contagious diseases, hereditary, accident, tight-lacing, miscarriage or other causes.

Their method of treatment is harmless, pleasant and mild. It is applied directly to the womb without the use of instruments; can be applied by the patients themselves, thus securing correct local treatment at home, and its application is easy and simple. Its curative action on the inflamed, congested and ulcerated parts is immediate.

Drs. Darrin refrain from making public the names of hundreds of ladies who have been restored to health, with due deference to the delicacy of their afflictions.

Dr Darrin's Place of Business.

Drs. Darrin can be consulted free at 265 Fifth street, corner of Main, Portland. Office hours, from 10 to 4 o'clock daily; evenings, 7 to 8; Sundays, 10 to 12. All curable chronic diseases, loss of manhood, blood taints, syphilis, gleet, gonorrhœa, stricture, spermatorrhœa, seminal weakness or loss of desire of sexual power in man or woman, catarrh and deafness are confidentially and successfully treated. Cures of private diseases guaranteed and never published in the papers. Circulars sent free. Most cases can receive home treatment after a visit to the doctors' office.

The offices at Salem and Eugene City are closed. Any persons under treatment in that vicinity can call or write to the Portland office.

On every lot in Edendale you can get pure, sparkling water at from 10 to 15 feet from the surface. Every lot in Edendale (pause here, ye intending buyers) will have a fine, 4-plank sidewalk connecting it with the motor line, so that you can step from the elegant cars upon a clean sidewalk and go to any lot in this favored park without getting your shoes soiled. This is being done now so that there shall be no expense to the buyer for sidewalks and no vexatious delays in getting scores of neighbors to agree upon the kind of sidewalks and the time of laying them.

No lot in Edendale is farther than 100 paces from the Sunnyside motor, which will be completed to the tract in two weeks. The lots will range in price from $200 to $1000, half cash, and can be had on and after Thursday morning, 21st inst., of

A POSSIBLE SOLUTION

[illegible] from a Mississippi journal [illegible] that Mississippi is rapidly becoming a negro state. It is asserted that the negro population of Mississippi increases at a phenomenal rate, that negroes from Alabama, Georgia and the Carolinas are coming in a steady stream, that more white people are leaving the state than are coming into it, and [illegible] double movement [illegible] Mississippi [illegible] up to the negro race.

It is [illegible] the New Mississippian [illegible] the official [illegible] collected [illegible] the colored population of Mississippi [illegible] the year 1890 will exceed the white population by [illegible]. In 1870 the excess [illegible] in 1880 [illegible]. There are now more than three blacks to two whites in the state, and according to the reckoning of the Mississippi journal the disproportion is growing at an alarming rate. No explanation however is attempted of [illegible] remarkable fact. But the significance of it increases when it is stated that in South Carolina and Louisiana, two other states in which the blacks have heretofore preponderated, the negroes are not increasing [illegible] rapidly [illegible] the whites, and that from present appearances the latter will soon [illegible] the majority.

This statement as to the accumulating [illegible] blacks in Mississippi suggests the possibility that the race question at the South may in the course of years work itself toward a solution upon [illegible] line, that is, that the blacks may gradually gather in particular localities from which the whites will slowly disappear. The case of Mississippi seems to suggest a tendency in this direction under the force of an ethnic law. We know that through the whole realm of nature like has a tendency to seek like. Slavery, existing in violation of natural law, arrested this tendency or suspended it, but since the abolition of slavery the elements that make up the social body are beginning to move freely upon each other, and what is now remarked as a phenomenon in Mississippi may prove to be the result of the natural tendency expressed in the old proverb, Pares facillime cum paribus congregantur, or in plain English, Birds of a feather flock together.

A FAMOUS BOOK

The Life of Washington, by Mason L. Weems, holds a unique place in biography. It has been read widely ever since it was first published in the year 1800, at first because its method and style suited a people not yet cultivated to the point of criticism, and [illegible] literary taste, and later because it was seen to be one of the greatest of all literary curiosities. It still [illegible] for the unique [illegible] it contains, and for the reason that it so charmingly defies all the principles upon which biography should be written.

A bibliography of this singular book, just published, shows that the first edition was issued in Georgetown in 1800. There is a copy of this edition in the library of the Boston Athenæum. The second and third editions were printed at Philadelphia by John Bioren, and a second third edition at Elizabethtown by Shepard Kollock. The fourth edition came out about 18[illegible] and the fifth at Augusta [illegible] in 180[illegible]. The [illegible] Philadelphia 1808 is really the first of the popular Weems's Washington [illegible] this the [illegible] cherry tree [illegible] story [illegible] Washington's dream [illegible] were printed. The seventh edition appeared the same year and the eighth in 1809. All these editions were printed for the author. Before the ninth edition was issued the same year Matthew Carey bought the copyright for $1000. A German translation of the ninth edition was published in Philadelphia in 1810. Carey's editions were the tenth, 1810, the eleventh [illegible] the twelfth, 1812, the fifteenth, sixteenth and seventeenth, 1816, the twentieth and twenty-first, 1818, and the twenty-second in 1820. Joseph Allen succeeded Carey as the publisher, and now the book is issued by the J. B. Lippincott Company, the latest edition appearing in 1882. From 1810 to 1850 Weems's Life of Washington was one of the half dozen books in the homes of the pioneers of the West, and probably was read more than any other. Every boy and girl who read anything got it by heart.

PROHIBITION AND HIGH LICENSE

Of the [illegible] in New Hampshire only one gave a majority for the prohibitory amendment, and of [illegible] towns in the state only [illegible] returned majorities for it. The people of New Hampshire voted against prohibition because they had learned through the experience of 31 years that it was utterly impracticable, could not be enforced, and [illegible] themselves.

While New Hampshire is voting [illegible] this way, Boston is deriving benefit from high [illegible] been [illegible] expected [illegible] increased [illegible] decrease [illegible] 2300 [illegible] year.

[illegible] saloons closed [illegible] the [illegible] Just the reverse [illegible] prohibition [illegible] haunts [illegible] of the [illegible] In another [illegible] gradually [illegible] everywhere [illegible] the most practicable thing that can be done [illegible]

[illegible] INFLUENCE

It is clear from the present appointments that Mr. Blaine does not rule the roast as he did under Garfield. [illegible] was the autocrat of the administration or even of his own department. William Walter Phelps and John A. Kasson would have been given more important diplomatic [illegible] than place on the Samoan Berlin conference [illegible] Egan and Kasson are devoted Blaine men whose political services to Blaine have been [illegible] personal character. Ex-Senator Sewell of New Jersey, reported to have been a close friend of Harrison in the senate, [illegible] influence with the president [illegible] is ascribed the failure of Blaine to secure a more distinguished recognition for his friends. Kasson, a really able and accomplished man, lost his hold upon Iowa several years ago, largely in consequence of domestic troubles that injured him with a large portion of his party, and Allison has since been the favorite of Iowa, although he is not [illegible] purely intellectual [illegible] the peer of Kasson. The general testimony of the Washington correspondence of the great newspapers both at the East and the West is that Blaine seems to be unable to reward any of his friends as he desires. Another proof that Harrison and not Blaine is president is the friendliness of Senator Edmunds with the administration. During Grant's administration Edmunds was on most cordial and confidential terms with the executive, but he stood entirely aloof from President Hayes and spoke of him in terms of sarcastic contempt as "a total abstinence man who drank everybody's whisky but his own." Toward the administration of Garfield Edmunds was openly hostile. He denounced Garfield's nomination as that of a man who would speak on the floor of the house and then vote against his own speech, or [illegible] out and not vote at all, and he described Arthur as an able man entirely superior to Garfield in administrative courage and capacity. When Arthur became president Edmunds was a welcome visitor at the White house. In the senate Edmunds and Harrison were always on excellent terms, while Edmunds and Blaine have been on bad terms since 1880, when Edmunds [illegible] urged his friends to defeat the nomination of Blaine. It is a significant fact, however, that President Harrison has evidently [illegible] Edmunds to keep the peace with Blaine, for it was Edmunds who [illegible] the confirmation of the [illegible] the new secretary [illegible] of Mr. Walker Blaine. [illegible] friend to Blaine that [illegible] White[illegible] [illegible] It looks very much as if President Harrison were [illegible] his policy to do justice [illegible] sections of the party and to [illegible] Senator Edmunds evidently trusts to President Harrison [illegible] keep Blaine where he belongs, or he would not [illegible] have buried the hatchet with Blaine.

The new postmaster general is reported as [illegible] thought to anticipate it by resignation to go [illegible] "When I get time I will look into your case. If you have been faithful and efficient you won't be disturbed [illegible] the formality [illegible]." Whether this story is true or not, it is sound doctrine. Subordinates who have been competent and faithful—and perhaps there are such in the postal service, though the people are skeptical upon that point—should be undisturbed. It may be that all that even the negligent and incompetent ones need to make them efficient is competent superiors and a knowledge that their tenure of office depends upon their promptness and capacity. At all events it seems probable that the subordinates in the postal service will get a chance to draw a few months' salary and redeem themselves under a republican administration.

The quarantined passengers on board the steamer Columbia in San Francisco bay are indignant beyond measure at their detention [illegible] the alleged smallpox case was nothing but nettle rash, or at worst [illegible] mild type of chickenpox complicated with vaccination. The health officer of San Francisco holds a contrary opinion, however, and as he is in a position where the opinion of one man [illegible] weigh [illegible] number of persons [illegible] for the passengers to do but to submit with what grace and patience they can muster. As they have three good meals a day to which they bring good appetites, and [illegible] among themselves sufficient talent and religion to hold concerts and prayer meetings, [illegible] with the unlimited privilege of growling, they are not in as forlorn [illegible] as the world [illegible].

[illegible] eighteen months when the term of the present [illegible] expires [illegible] Oregon to paste this remark in their hats and turn their [illegible] philosophically toward the [illegible].

PORTLAND AND VICINITY.

A CHERRY TREE THIEF.—Instances of flowers being stolen out of gardens in this city are not uncommon, but it is seldom that good sized trees are taken. An instance of this kind has however come to light within the past few days. A handsome Black Republican cherry tree which has been growing for nine years past on Mr H. [illegible] block, between Washington and Alder, on West Park and Eighth streets, was dug up and carried away by some enterprising fellow, probably a flower thief, as the tree was just blooming. There are a number of other fruit trees on the block, each of which will be anchored fast and extra precaution will be taken to fasten the house to the foundations, so that if any one steals the house he will have to carry off the cellar. It is not supposed that any attempt will be made to steal the block this year, but if city property keeps on increasing in value a watchman will be employed to guard it next year.

AN INDUSTRIOUS THIEF.—The Transcontinental Street Railway Company have a lot of oats stored in the new buildings at Twenty-third and [illegible] streets, from which a wagon is hauled every few days to their stables. A team was sent out there for a load a day or two ago and the driver was much surprised to find the oats lying loose in a pile instead of being in sacks. Some energetic and industrious fellow had opened all the sacks, poured out the oats and carried off the sacks, doubtless to sell them at some place where such articles are bought. As there were some 90 sacks and the fellow probably got 2 or 3 cents each for them, he made quite a [illegible] and will now be able to speculate in real estate. [illegible] generally do not care to do so much [illegible] so little, so it is evident this thief is not a lazy man, the only trouble is that his industry was misdirected.

KALLICH STANDS TREAT.—Early yesterday morning Policeman Lynn while passing Kallich's fish market on [illegible] street between First and Second discovered that the door was open and on further searching found that a window at the side of the building and the back door also were open. The place had evidently been entered by a burglar, as the books and papers had been turned out of the desk and scattered about the floor, probably in a search for plunder. The burglar had supposedly effected an entrance by the window and then unlocked the doors to facilitate his escape. As there was no money to be found the visitor was forced to content himself with some clams and oysters which he carried off in a sack. It will take an expert some time to get Mr Kallich's books and papers set to rights, but his [illegible] matters are no worse.

THE ORGAN GRINDER AND THE PIPE.—With the return of the birds and flowers the organ grinder and his monkey have put in an appearance and the first breezes of summer are freighted with the melodies evolved by the crank of a hurdy-gurdy and the youngsters in the back streets are delirious with hilarity. One fellow has an instrument which resembles the latest improved folding bed when folded to represent a sideboard, and it sounds like an old time piano. It is a regular back load, and the owner is obliged to carry a trestle on which to place it when he plays. He rests himself and gathers in the nickels of the enthusiastic [illegible] who are always ready to go broke on such institutions.

MORIN ACQUITS IN JAIL.—It was rumored yesterday that efforts had been made to induce Joseph Morin, the man who was recently discharged in the police court on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon, not to prosecute the case against Al Cody for [illegible] or else to leave the city for a money consideration. Whether this is true or not an officer was sent after Morin to have him taken to jail for safe keeping. Morin was not found in his room, but when he returned and was told of what the officer wanted he went to the city jail of his own accord and surrendered himself. Morin will now be held as a witness until the trial of Al Cody in the state circuit court.

THE EMINENT PIANIST from Sweden, [illegible] [illegible], who recently made such a furore in Eastern cities, writes to Hallet & Davis: "Having thoroughly tested your recent improvements whereby the pressure is removed from the sounding board, the volume and purity of tone increased and evenness in all the registers secured, let me congratulate you upon the superior grade of your instruments and add my testimony of its merits to that of the many eminent artists who give it their unqualified indorsement." These pianos at Eastern prices, for cash or on installments, at The Chicago Music House, [illegible] First street.

HINKLEY IS IMPROVING.—The man Samuel Hinkley, who was picked up near the International hotel in an unconscious condition, by an officer Thursday morning and conveyed to the Portland hospital, is reported to be improving. The gash in his head, caused by striking a rock in the fall, is not as serious as at first supposed. He still maintains that he was doped and robbed of nearly $70, but he doesn't like to believe that his companion, a stranger, did the job. [illegible] by the way, has not been seen since the misfortune that has befallen Hinkley.

THEY TOOK A BUGGY.—Thursday evening Mrs C. W. Nottingham left her home on Portland Heights with her sister-in-law to attend [illegible] church. Later in the evening Policeman Joe Day recovered the horse and buggy in the [illegible] part of town and took it to the [illegible] station. Our Grand Opening

Last evening of Spring and Summer Goods, both in Staple lines and Novelties, was an immense success and exceeded by far our most sanguine expectations. We expected a crowd and had a regular jam. It was a good natured jam, however, and every one seemed to be in good humor. We promised our friends and the public the grandest spread ever given in Portland. We think we made our word good; in fact we are sure of it, for we received on all sides words of praise for our beautiful goods, and favorable mention for the manner in which they were displayed. For the pleasure of many that may not have been able to attend that evening we shall continue the main display and decorations for the balance of the week, thus affording all an opportunity of viewing and examining one of the grandest collections of high novelties ever brought together under one roof. We would direct your attention to our

Millinery Department

In particular, where you will not only find the latest Eastern craze but a magnificent collection of the very newest of Parisian Novelties. One visit to our Millinery Parlors will convince the most skeptical of our Portland ladies that our claim of being the bon ton establishment of the city, and of always showing the most elegant bonnets and more of them than any house in the line, is founded on facts and is not mere advertising talk. We are Leaders, not imitators, and if you desire a bonnet or hat different from anything any one else has, in fact a creation of an artist in the business, we can produce it for you. Can you secure this result elsewhere?

Fancy Goods Department

In this department you will find a very rich display of Ribbons, Fans, Gloves, Laces, Persian Trimmings, Silk Hosiery and Underwear. Take your time here, for if you do not you will miss many pretty and useful articles. We prided ourselves on our selections last season. Our buyers have outdone themselves this spring and our shelves and counters groan under the weight of new goods. When you have finished your survey of this department, cross over to our

Dress Goods Department

Here you will find a vast assortment of Foreign and Domestic Silks, Silk and Wool and All Wool Dress Materials. No establishment in the city can show a larger or finer collection of elegant fabrics and few can equal ours. You will now pass to the rear room.

Domestic Department

This is the room where we will show you our assortment of Summer Dress Fabrics, such as French and American Satines, Scotch Zephyrs, Chambrays, Feather Ginghams, Seersuckers, Dotted and Flowered Swiss, India Muslins, Nainsooks, etc. Also contains our Linens, Toilet Spreads, Comforts, Upholstery Goods, Cloths, Sheetings, Prints and Ginghams. Then you enter our

Cloak Department

Well stocked with Spring Wraps of all descriptions, including Beaded Mantles, Peasant Gowns, Light Weight Ulsters and Jackets. Here you will find an elegant line of Shawls in Shetland and Berlin Wools, Cashmere Shawls in black and colors, and last but not least a fine line of B. PRIESTLEY & CO'S BORDERED HENRIETTA SHAWLS. We will now pass on to our Shoe Department.

As neat and attractive as ever, with a stock second to none on this coast. We have added several new and attractive lines in LADIES' AND CHILDREN'S WEAR, and it will be well worth your time to investigate this department very closely. We can serve you with either fine or medium grades of goods, as may suit your purse and fancy. And now we have a surprise in store for you. This is our Clothing Department.

You don't recognize it, do you? Neither do we any more. We have to pinch ourselves to make sure we are not dreaming. It is the same place, however, only in an entire new dress from the front to the rear, and is without question the handsomest clothing room in the city, and the new stock is in keeping with the surroundings. We are now better prepared than ever to clothe the children, boys, youths or men and invite you one and all to give the Clothing Department a call. Do not for one moment imagine that we cannot fit you out with a fine suit. We have them just as costly as you may wish, and if you do not desire them ready made, we are prepared to make them to order.

PORTLAND, SATURDAY, MARCH 23

NOT A JUDICIOUS APPOINTMENT.

The foreign and domestic appointments of President Harrison have thus far, in the main, been of high order; so much so, both in the character and capacity of the nominees, that we confess to a sense of disappointment in the sending of Colonel F. D. Grant as minister to Austria. It is true that the duties of the position are not onerous, for while there is a possibility of complications in the future with Germany, or England, or China, there is not the remotest probability of any trouble with Austria.

Austria, like Italy, is a mere vassal practically to Germany; that is, the diplomacy that governs both these allies of Germany is fixed and ordered from Berlin, and not at Rome or Vienna.

While this is true, the court of Vienna, next to that of Paris is one that demands a bright, accomplished and cultivated American properly to represent our country. The city of Vienna is the Paris of Germany not only in politeness, elegance and superficial social polish and gayety, but it is the center of great schools of medicine, surgery, art and solid scientific learning. Thousands of able and accomplished men from all parts of Europe and America visit Vienna. The American minister cannot, if he would, remain inconspicuous. He must, in obedience to diplomatic etiquette, take a prominent part in the intelligent political and social circles of the brilliant capital of Austria. It is not necessary that our minister should be a man of genius, either in letters or politics, but he ought at least to be an American gentleman of good repute for intelligence, intellect, good breeding, and respectable knowledge of political learning and polite literature.

Now while we are not disposed to credit the impeachment of Colonel Grant's personal business integrity made by the New York Sun, nevertheless it does not seem to us that any justification for Colonel Grant's appointment can be pleaded, saving that he is the dull, good natured, inefficient son of a great soldier and patriot. Colonel Grant graduated from West Point in 1871, 37th in a class of 41. His career at West Point was in no respect of good promise. His service in the army was short. It included a leave of absence in Europe from June 1871, to November 1872, and he served as an aid on Lieutenant General Sheridan's staff, with the rank of Lieutenant Colonel, until he married a Chicago heiress and resigned from the army. He is not reputed to be a man of vicious life or evil temper. He seems to be an amiable, indolent, genial, but rather dull, incompetent person, who never would be thought of for any position of political consequence or responsibility, if he had not inherited his great father's name. He is simply a great man's dull, inoffensive, inefficient, indolent oldest boy. He wanted to go to China, where there is something to do, but President Harrison knew better than to send him thither, so he has been sent to Vienna, where there is nothing to do, and yet where he ought not to be sent, since the traditions of the place are those of talent. Mr. Motley was a poor diplomatist, but he was a most charming man, a scholar, a man of great literary talents, a man of wit and brilliant powers of public speech and conversation. William Walter Phelps and John A. Kasson, are also men of thorough education and culture, who have risen to high reputation in both law and politics. Colonel Grant is not worthy to succeed such men not because he is a man of bad character or vulgar manners, but simply because he is not equal by his acquirements or his efficient work in any respectable calling to an appointment that carries with it the presumption that the incumbent is something more than a great soldier's and patriot's incompetent and spiritless offspring.

Of course Colonel Grant was able to secure a deal of influence, because his father's memory is very dear to a great many people. Moreover his own personal character is amiable and his temper genial, but he ought to have been content with some more obscure position. A consul-generalship somewhere would be the utmost that should be given him. He is unfit to be the representative of a great nation in one of the greatest and most brilliant cities of Europe.

Colonel Grant goes to the court of Vienna absolutely without reputation, save that of unbroken failure; he is the son of his father, the dupe of Ferdinand Ward and the stupid architect of his whole family's pecuniary ruin. The amiable, inefficient, indolent son of General Grant should never have been placed on the pedestal of the Austrian mission, because all Europe will be able to see that he is a pigmy, and pigmies are pigmies still, though perched on Alps.

WOMEN WHO WORK

Commissioner Wright of the labor bureau, in pursuit of the investigation ordered by congress into the status of the working people of the United States, appointed two women as special agents to inquire concerning the condition, wages and occupation of the women who work in the great cities and manufacturing centers. The duty of these agents was "to present authentic pictures of the industrial condition of working women of the day, to furnish a contribution to the history of the times which should be absolutely true, and to gather data for its scientific bearing upon social problems."

Important and comprehensive as was this duty, and unused to work of this kind as women are, the record shows that these agents performed the work with credit to themselves and benefit to the cause of working women. Their work was carefully systematized. Their days were devoted to the collection of information, their evenings to writing up the facts gathered and their Sundays to visiting working women in their homes. A number of the large cities of the East were thus systematically worked, the agents devoting as much time as was necessary to the investigation, and recording the facts obtained.

Among the difficulties attending the work are noted the frequent refusal of employers to talk about their relations with employes; the refusal of admission to work rooms; hostility between employer and employe which frequently led to such partisan accounts as were wholly unreliable, and the extreme reluctance manifested by working women of all grades to confess their actual needs and deprivations. Tact and persistence, however, usually overcame these difficulties to a degree that enabled the agents, at least to obtain the information sought as to wages, hours, and the manner of living, which the fruit of their hands enabled the workers to enjoy.

Among the most striking results of the inquiry was the disclosure of an independent spirit among the classes visited which scorned the aid of charitable or benevolent effort. They are self-supporting, though their wages are often the merest pittance, and they prefer to be self-dependent. During the investigation the agents interviewed between 17,000 and 20,000 women, and this feeling of independence was found to be almost universal among them.

Increasing diversity of employment fosters this spirit. Fifteen years ago the great mass of working-women crowded each other in twenty-five occupations, and barely kept famine at bay. The employments for women listed by these agents numbers 400, and in all of them deftness, intelligence and reliability are shown. In thousands of cases a meager living results, while in others small earnings and shrewd speculations are noted.

As regards their moral condition it was found to compare favorably with that of women in other walks of life, and, indeed, taking into consideration the temptations that lie in wait for them, and the want that so often and so mercilessly assails many of them, it is but fair to consider it better. Summing up on this point, working-women as a class are declared to be "a heroic band, constantly exhibiting evidence of brave endurance, unparalleled devotion and patient self-sacrifice."

While the exceptions to this general average of industry, morality and freedom from absolute want are frequent enough to form many a sad chapter in life, while at best the lot of the working-woman, when compared to that of her sheltered and protected sister, is a hard one, it is evident that it has been much worse than it is now in this country, and that it is on the whole much better here than in any other nation under the sun.

A magnificent structure, to be known as the "Temple of Temperance," is to be built in Chicago this year by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. It will be eleven stories high and will cost $800,000. About half of this sum has already been raised, and with the persistence and industry characteristic of women who are working for conscience sake, the canvass for funds is being pushed. It is estimated that the income from rental, after the building is finished, will be $25,000 a year. The completion of such a vast undertaking will prove the thoroughness of the organization, and the zeal of the women enlisted under the name of the Woman's Temperance Union. Their work may be of the most impractical kind, but there is no discount on their energy.

The effect of an elopement is similar, in one respect, to that of an execution, a suicide or a murder. There is a fatality, an excitement, a sensation connected with it that operates on weak minds and causes a sort of epidemic, in its peculiar line to break out. As a rule, the more objectionable the man whom a young woman of respectable family runs away with and marries, the more violent the epidemic of inconsiderate and ill-assorted marriages that follows. The young man, with whom the daughter of the chief justice eloped a few days ago, did not happen to be a coachman or a bar-tender, or an anarchist; hence the fever engendered may be expected to prove of a mild type that will abate without serious consequences.

One of the most potent reasons, says the Philadelphia Press, for the overwhelming defeat of constitutional prohibition in New Hampshire last week was found in the "evident failure to enforce the prohibitory law that has been on the statute books of New Hampshire for thirty-three years." Temperance people, of the third party type, see no incongruity in piling one law upon another of like import which has been for years inoperative, but when they come to submit a proposition of this kind to the people at large the futility of such multiplicity of laws is recognized and an embargo is placed on the useless enactment.

A case of "accidental exactness" is reported from Scranton, Pa. A busy doctor sent in a certificate of death to the health officer, and inadvertently placed his name in the space designated, "cause of death." He should have been promptly advised that he was not compelled to criminate himself, permitted to make correction, and to retire behind the verbiage of the profession.

THE CONSTITUTION OF THE NEW STATE.

Who is to Frame It, and What Should It Be?

PACIFIC COUNTY, W. T., March 20, 1889.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Who shall frame our state constitution? We find our politicians and our lawyers are very much alive to its importance; but, on the other hand, we are struck with the apparent apathy of the people in general to it.

Now, that the people ought to take a deep and active interest in this matter is admitted by all. Yet, that they will not, is the certainty on which our legal and political wire-pullers expect to work themselves in as delegates to the coming "constitutional convention." Then, if they suit themselves, they are also very sure, under the pressure of circumstances, that it will be ratified by a majority, so that they will have the double advantage of doing it their own way and being backed in their doings by the people.

It may be urged that it is a mere matter of form to copy a "state constitution" out of those already before us. But why, we ask, are they so anxious to do this for us? Why do they start their political machinery, and urge their legal ability for the poor business of copying or carving out a "state constitution" for us? If there are no advantages to be gained for any particular class, why do we see a special few so greatly interested in obtaining positions as delegates to meet at Olympia on the Fourth of July? Ah, by our lives there must be something in it! Something we should look to for ourselves! We, the common people, who expect to live in the great state of Washington; we who expect to make her interest our own; obey her laws, and still maintain the just and equal rights to all; we who shall ask no favors as a class and rightly owe none save such as our social laws require. But, if we fail to guard our interests ourselves, or make an effort at the proper time, we scarce can blame any but ourselves if there should be some "class advantages" hid in the legal verbiage of our coming "constitution."

That common representation can guard and secure our common rights, ought not to be forgot. In this (although we all admit the use of legal training in preparing law) is obvious, because our common interests require that all people need their various interests represented too. And this should check us from supporting any special class or party to prepare a "constitution" to secure the rights of all. We ought to choose men from among us for their solid worth, in all we count on that a good, intelligent and honest citizen is in himself, regardless of all parties and professions of a special kind.

SCHOOL ROOM AT A PREMIUM.

The Directors Talking of Adding Two Rooms to the Failing Building.

Ex-Mayor David P. Thompson presided at the meeting of the school directors last night. Being the senior member of the board in point of service this honor falls to him, and he will be the president until his term expires next March. All the directors were present.

The principal business under consideration was the proposition to provide additional room to accommodate the rapidly increasing school population. Director Therkelsen called the attention of the board to the matter and remarked that if anything was to be done, the sooner it was done, the better.

Chairman Thompson thought the best move would be to add two large rooms to the south side of Failing school. This could be done for $7500, he said.

"Where is the greatest increase in population?" asked Director Ladd.

"At Failing school," was the answer of City Superintendent Sabin. "Many of the children belonging to that school have been sent to the Harrison street school because of lack of room. Couch school will also need an addition in the near future. There are now 800 children registered at the school."

On motion of Director Ladd, Chairman Thompson and Director Therkelsen were constituted a building committee and authorized to engage an architect and adopt plans and specifications.

The application of the executors of the estate of J. J. Burton, for the remission of $56 75 school taxes, because of indebtedness, was referred to Clerk Allen.

H. F. Gullixson's application for the remission of $15 75 was denied.

The following claims were ordered paid: T. F. Powers $2 50, Lownsdale, Wheeler & Co. $12 35, Duffey & Co. $5, J. T. Williams $5, S. G. Morrow $3, E. Citron $2, H. C. Boyd $5, J. C. Barry $5, Leach, Armstrong & Co. $4 75, E. W. Horgan $34 50.

Director Durham offered a resolution to borrow $4000 at 7½ per cent. interest from the Bank of British Columbia. No action was taken.

Mrs. E. Simpson was excused from undergoing an examination for a state certificate, until the end of the present school term.

Director Ladd was instructed to secure an orator to address the June class of the High school. The commencement exercises will be held June 21. There will be about twenty graduates, mostly young ladies.

Chairman Thompson was authorized to purchase shelves for the library collected by the teachers and pupils of the Park school. The library consists of 125 volumes.

MR. MARKLE'S PROPOSITION.

He Says He Meant Business and Was Ready to Build His Works.

"Was the proposition to light the city by electricity made by you to the city council a bona fide one?" asked an OREGONIAN reporter yesterday of Mr. George B. Markle.

"It was a business proposition, plain, simple and clear. If the council desired to save from $11,000 to $15,000 in lighting the city, the opportunity was presented. My offer was not made to antagonize any other interest, but was submitted just as if I was about to engage in any legitimate business. If the contract had been awarded to me I would begin work immediately upon my works and rush them to an early completion. If necessary I could finish them in sixty days, but owing to the great amount of labor involved I could not feel justified in furnishing a bond to do so. I would use the most improved system and give the city a light fully as good as the one it now has."

EXTRAORDINARY LICENSE.

"It seems to me," remarked one of our citizens the other day, "that physicians are allowed extraordinary license in the manner in which they juggle with the welfare of their patients.

"Now, here is Dr. ——, who was attending Mr. —— up to the time of his death, and if he treated him for one thing he treated him for a dozen different disorders. First the doctor said pneumonia was the trouble; then it was consumption. Then the patient was dosed for heart trouble, and so on until just before he died it was ascertained that disease of the kidneys was the real trouble, and that which had been at first treated as pneumonia, consumption, heart disease, etc., were but the symptoms of kidney disease.

"But then it was too late.

"This is only one case in a hundred, and I am beginning to lose faith in the doctors altogether. In fact I haven't had any need for their services since I began to keep Warner's Safe Cure in my house, a little over three years ago. Whenever I feel a little out of sorts I take a few doses of it, confident that the source of all disease is in the kidneys, which I know Warner's Safe Cure will keep in good order, and will eradicate any disease that may be lurking there. Had Mr. —— followed a similar course, I have no doubt that he would be alive to-day; but of course all people don't think alike.

"One thing is certain, however, and that is the doctors are allowed a little too much freedom in the way they have of pretending to know that which they really know nothing about. If they don't know what is the real trouble with the patient, they should admit it and not go on and experiment at the cost of the patient's life."

UMATILLA RESERVATION.

History of the Effort to Open the Reservation to Settlement.

Interesting Account of the Proceedings Thus Far, and of the Causes Preventing Consummation of the Plan.

Statement in Pendleton East Oregonian.

Congress passed an act, which was approved by the president March 3, 1885, to allot lands in severalty to the Indians residing on the Umatilla reservation, and to sell the surplus lands at public sale. The people of this section of Oregon urged the passage of this act for many years before it was enacted. Such legislation was of the highest importance to the people, for hundreds, if not thousands, of the inhabitants of Umatilla county would be directly benefited by the opening of the reservation. The reservation contains, in round numbers, 270,000 acres of the finest land in the world; the amount required for allotments, grazing and timber land for the Indians was estimated not to exceed 120,000 acres, and the amount to be thrown open for white settlers was 150,000 acres. This vast body of agricultural land, most of which is capable of producing thirty bushels of wheat to the acre, is wholly within Umatilla county, and is immediately adjacent to and surrounds the city of Pendleton. The occupation of this land by white settlers means the location in permanent homes of not less than 1000 new families in the neighborhood of Pendleton, and the addition of about 4,000,000 bushels of wheat, worth $[illegible], each year to the business of Pendleton. It means the building of 1000 new houses, also barns or corrals, hundreds of miles of fencing, the planting of hundreds of orchards, the production of an enormous quantity of vegetables and fresh fruits, the employment of thousands of men [illegible] and horses, the building of villages and small towns, and the doubling and trebling of the business and population of the city of Pendleton. It is safe to say that had the Umatilla reservation been opened in 1885, as it ought to have been, the population of Pendleton would to-day be not less than 10,000 and city property would be worth three times what it is now. Had Pendleton now a population of 10,000, a large portion of the "boom" which has raged at Spokane Falls and on Puget sound would have been diverted thither, and instead of our people [illegible] each other to contribute to a subsidy to hire a railroad to run into Pendleton, no railroad manager would dare to hint at passing us by. But it needs no argument to show what might have been. Pendleton's population is only about 5000, real estate values are low and not advancing rapidly. Many of our most enterprising people are being attracted to Puget sound and are carrying away both brains and capital.

The reason for this stagnation at Pendleton is the failure to open the Umatilla reservation. The land immediately adjacent to Pendleton lies dead and unproductive. To be sure a few bands of sheep and cattle eke out precarious existence along the borders of the reservation, but where sheep and cattle range towns and cities do not grow.

Who is responsible for the failure to open the reservation? Is it the government, the people of Pendleton or a handful of selfish men who profit by the use of the reservation lands to the exclusion of the public, and who rejoice in the humiliation and misfortunes of Pendleton?

A brief examination of the facts will show that while the Federal government is slow and stupid, and while the people of Pendleton have not been urgent, energetic and persistent, as they should have been, the principal hindrance to the opening of the reservation has been, and now is, a handful of white men residing upon the reservation, or on its borders, who occupy in some cases several thousand acres of reservation lands, without expense, and who, by keeping their property upon the reservation, escape responsibility for contracts, evade taxation and by throwing obstacles in the way of opening the reservation thrive at the expense of the public. Through the connivance of ex-Agent Coffey, these men have been recently reinforced by several score of Frenchmen from the Willamette valley and British Columbia, who having squatted upon the reservation in violation of law, in opposition to the express instructions of the commissioner of Indian affairs, and as a direct insult to the law-abiding citizens of Umatilla county, who have waited for years for the privilege of buying from the government the land occupied by these insolent squatters, now join their forces in the effort to keep the reservation from being opened.

In 1885, shortly after the law to open the reservation was passed, ex-Senator Slater and Judge LaDow, of this city, were appointed commissioners, with the instruction to secure the consent of the Indians to the provisions of the act. These commissioners failed to secure the consent of the Indians, and in their report to the Indian department gave as the chief reason for such failure the plotting and improper influence of certain white men who were occupying large tracts of the best land upon the reservation. A few months later Special Agent Charles H. Dickson, one of the ablest and most experienced officers of the interior department came here and did his utmost to make a treaty with the Indians. He failed for the same reason ex-Senator Slater and Judge LaDow failed. In October, 1885, Inspector George R. Pearson and Special Agent William Parsons were appointed commissioners and came here to make the treaty. They discovered at once that the majority of the Indians were in favor of the treaty, but that the majority of the chiefs were against it. In order to make a valid treaty it was necessary that a majority of the chiefs as well as the Indians should sign. Day after day passed until all the Indians were ready to sign but the majority of the chiefs obstinately refused. Then the commissioners sought for the motives governing the refusal of the chiefs and they found that the improper influence of white men residing on the reservation was at the bottom of the refusal. Notice was sent to these men that unless they ceased instigating these chiefs to reject the treaty the law would take hold of them. The commissioners meant business; the white wire-pullers recognized that fact, they soon became mum, and all the chiefs signed the treaty. The commissioners did all in their power to expedite matters, throw open the reservation and give the people of Pendleton the advantage of it. They urged the department to act at once upon the treaty. The commissioners made their report in November, 1885, and in December of the same year a new board of commissioners, consisting of Inspector Pearson, Special Agent Parsons and H. T. Stanton, were sent out to select a diminished reserve and designate the surplus lands to be sold. This work ought to have been finished by April 1, 1887, but the department made the mistake of detaching Inspector Pearson and Special Agent Parsons from the commission and appointing inexperienced men to take their places. As these new men had to learn everything afresh and received a per diem of $10, while their predecessors, drawing a yearly salary, had no occasion to go slow, it is not strange that the work of selling the diminished reserve lasted till midsummer.

It was on the report of the commissioners that the gentlemen who were opposed to the opening of the reserve got in some more of their fine work. A few Indians were induced to object to the boundary line of the diminished reserve. This caused a delay of several months. Then several Indians were persuaded to claim that there was not enough agricultural land for allotment in the diminished reserve. This resulted in the appointment of a fresh—very fresh—board of commissioners, not a member of which had ever had any experience on Indian reservations. On their arrival here, instead of being made conversant with the wishes and needs of the people of Pendleton and Umatilla county, and being impressed by Pendleton people with the urgent need of a speedy opening of the reservation, they were taken in tow and dined and wined by the gentlemen who wished the reservation to remain unopened; and, as was to be expected, they were so skillfully engineered against the interest of Pendleton that when they made their report another alleged blunder was found—lo, and behold! it was claimed that the poor Indians could not get easy access to the timber set apart for their use on the diminished reserve. Of course this was all humbug, but it was sufficient excuse for the enemies of Pendleton's prosperity to delay the sale of the reservation a few months longer.

This brought the matter down to the summer of 1888, and still the reservation was not opened. Then Pendleton woke up and sent a committee, consisting of Messrs. Ballerny and Eddy, to Washington to urge the opening of the reservation. They did their work well, but still the reservation is not opened. Congress has passed a supplemental act authorizing the secretary of the interior to use up the whole reservation, if necessary, to allot lands in severalty to the Indians. This supplemental act was intended to prevent any more delays, and its effect may be very baneful to the interests of Pendleton, and it behooves our people to consider well the situation. The original act of March 3, 1885, limited the Indian holding on the diminished reserve to 120,000 acres, and provided that the surplus 150,000 acres should be sold at public sale. The supplemental act referred to increases the diminished reserve indefinitely, and may decrease the amount of surplus land to be sold very materially. To what extent the decrease of the land to be sold may go depends upon the license given by the late Indian Agent Coffey to Frenchmen to occupy Indian lands on the reservation, upon the cheek and assurance of these Frenchmen to hold lands upon the reservation, and upon the stupidity of the commissioners who may finally allot the lands and appraise the surplus lands. In August, 1888, William Parsons, W. J. Cleveland and H. T. Stanton were appointed by Secretary Vilas as commissioners to allot and appraise the surplus lands. President Cleveland signed commissions to each of these commissioners, and unless the action of the department has been recently countermanded, these will be the commissioners to appraise and allot. The appointment of a new secretary in place of Lamar, appointed to the supreme bench, and the change of administration March 4, 1889, may substitute other persons as commissioners.

Now what is the present situation? The census of Indians to whom land was to be allotted on the diminished reserve was taken by the commissioners in the spring of 1887. Since then a large number of people, mostly Frenchmen, have taken possession of the reserve. Their number is estimated by good judges to be 200. By the census of 1881, the Walla Wallas numbered 186, Cayuses [illegible]; Umatillas, 158; total, 751. The census of the commissioners in the spring of 1887 gives the total number entitled to allotment as 884, and upon this number of Indians the size of the diminished reserve was determined upon. Now, if since the spring of 1887, 200 Frenchmen have been added to the number of Indians entitled to allotment, it follows that the diminished reserve selected in the spring of 1887 will be too small for the requirements of allotment in 1889. A new reserve will have to be selected this year and the sale of the surplus lands will be indefinitely postponed. When Inspector J. C. Saunders came here last January these facts were called to his attention, he at once saw the importance of the matter, ordered the Frenchmen and the whites, not on the reservation under authority of law, to vacate immediately and, on their showing signs of contumacy, troops were sent for and are now on the reservation to enforce the laws and to secure to Pendleton and Umatilla county their rights under the treaty. Certain individuals object to the presence of the troops and claim that they hurt the business. I have no doubt that the presence of troops has stifled the schemes of certain white men and Frenchmen whose interests are hostile to the people of Pendleton and Umatilla county, but the interests of the many ought to be superior to the selfish interests of the few, and for my part I should like to see a ten-company post located at Pendleton or on the Umatilla reservation, and I believe that the supplies they would buy, the business they would bring to Pendleton, would be of vastly more importance to Pendleton than any business that the schemers might transact at Centerville or Adams.

Now what is the duty of the people of Pendleton in the premises? It seems to me to be clear and unmistakable. We should uphold the action of Inspector Saunders in calling for the removal of all white men, Frenchmen or otherwise, unlawfully occupying the lands of the Umatilla reservation. We should approve of the presence of troops here to enforce the laws and we should be only too glad to have all the troops formerly stationed at Walla Walla located here. We should support the special agent, Judge H. S. Welton, temporarily in charge of the reservation, in all his efforts to enforce the law, whether against reckless and contumacious white men or disorderly Indians. We should seek to transform the Umatilla reservation from an Indian reservation, because so long as a few white men occupy it, whether for agriculture or grazing, the great mass of our people derive no benefit from it; and what is of vastly more importance, we are told in our efforts to secure the sale of the surplus lands, that [illegible] to open the reservation becomes slight, and a few selfish individuals are given full swing to run the reservation for their own personal ends. They thrive in this manner, the growth of Pendleton is retarded, and we remain a village when we ought to be a flourishing city. The people of Pendleton should not delude themselves. So long as all concerted effort is directed to preventing the opening of the reservation and no business-like steps are taken to secure its opening, the surplus lands will not be sold. Indian commissioners, secretaries of the interior and administrations may change, but the schemes to prevent the opening of the reservation go on forever. The people of Pendleton must organize in a business way. They must be more alert to [illegible] and circumvent the schemes of the enemies of Pendleton than the latter are to invent delays and prepare obstacles. We should have a vigilance committee—not to violate the laws, but to prevent the violation of the laws and the treaty, and to secure our rights in the matter of opening the reservation. Let us organize to secure the opening of the reservation, and as a consequence make Pendleton a city of 10,000 people within the next twelve months.

WILLIAM PARSONS.

THAT LOWER CALIFORNIA BOOM.

One of the Directors of the International Land Company Talks.

CHICAGO, March 22.—Louis Huller, a well known Mexican concessionist, sat in his office to-day and with much interest read in a morning paper that he was confined in a Mexican prison at the present time. He also was advised for the first time that he had a startling story to tell about the Lower California mining bubble.

"I have no story to tell," said Mr. Huller; "but I have been reading some absurd and malicious stories about myself. The rush of fortune seekers to Lower California was not caused by the International Land Company. That section is rich in mineral wealth."

"Why has it not been worked before then?" asked a reporter.

"Mining in Ensenada county necessitates a vast amount of money, owing to the lack of water, and it is not the best country to live in."

"Are you connected with the company in any capacity now?"

"No, I resigned my position as director about a year ago. Major George H. Sisson and myself bought the lands and obtained concessions for ourselves in 1881. Next year a corporate company from Hartford, Connecticut, purchased our land and all our rights for about $800,000. Sisson was made manager and I was resident director. We started a new town, Ensenada, located on All Saints' bay, and built hotels and stores. Then we began to boom the country according to our contract with the Mexican government. We were compelled to colonize the lands after we had started Ensenada. The Eastern stockholders, most of whom had never seen California, formed some idea regarding the policy of the company, who [illegible] with our plan, and in the difficulty which followed Major Sisson and myself resigned."

THE GOVERNMENT IN EARNEST.

The United States Steamship Thetis to Protect American Fishermen.

WASHINGTON, March 22.—Sailing orders have been sent to the United States steamship Thetis, at the Mare Island navy yard, to proceed to Sitka, touching at such places as the commanding officer may deem necessary. When she arrives at Sitka and communicates with the civil authorities, she will, if the situation is quiet and her presence there not required, continue on northward, and devote her attention particularly to the whaling fleet and other commercial interests of the United States in the waters about Behring straits and the Arctic ocean. As the whaling vessels usually leave the Arctic in the latter part of September, the presence of the Thetis, until then, will add security to those engaged in that important industry, and the Thetis will remain until they have taken their departure southward, taking care not to be caught in the ice. She will then return to Sitka and await further instructions.

A DISASTROUS FIRE.

Destruction of a City Hall Building Containing Numerous Offices.

DOVER, N. H., March 22.—The City hall building, containing the police station, all the city and county offices, the police court room, aldermen and council chambers, high school and cadets' armory and the City opera house with a seating capacity of 1000, was burned this morning. The damage to the records in the vaults is not ascertained. Two churches and several business houses were badly damaged.

THOSE CHAINED SKELETONS.

A Question as to Whether they Were in the Hold of the Merrimac or Cumberland.

NORFOLK, Va., March 22.—The story that two chained skeletons were found in the hold of the sunken rebel ram Merrimac is denied and it is asserted that they were in the hold of the United States ship Cumberland, which the Merrimac ran down.

Two Murderers Hanged.

MINNEAPOLIS, March 22.—Tim and Pete Barrett were hanged here this morning at 11:14 o'clock, for the murder of car-driver Tollefsen, on the night of July 26, 1888.

Almost at dawn knots of men began to gather about the jail, and soon it became necessary to bar the way to the rear entrance with timbers.

About 10 o'clock Mrs. Barret went to the sheriff's office and created a scene. She was taken away in a cab.

At 11 o'clock there were 3000 people gathered about the building.

The condemned men spent the morning with friends and went to their death firmly. Both their necks were broken.

ACCORDING TO A PARAgraph in the American Cultivator of Boston, Consumption is gradually decreasing in New England This is a gratifying fact, and much of the credit of this condition of things is due to the extraordinary popularity in the past 50 years in New England of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup. To this wonderful remedy more than all others combined is due the credit of decreasing the ravages of Consumption

JULIUS BOYDEN,

NARROW GAUGE TROUBLES.

The Affairs of the Oregonian Railway Shortly To Be Wound Up.

[illegible]uidator Soon to Arrive In Oregon—Arrangements Made for Carrying on the Business Temporarily—Financial Condition.

The complications arising out of the late decision of the United States supreme court in the case of the Oregonian Railway Company against the O. R. & N. Co. have caused shippers over the narrow gauge lines some annoyance. They will therefore be pleased to learn that Receiver Scott states that he proposes to hold the railway anyhow until the United States court dismisses him, notwithstanding the official liquidator's appointment. He yesterday made arrangements with the Portland & Willamette Valley Railway Company for a temporary traffic agreement under which the latter company will collect and pay to him for the benefit of the employees of the Oregonian road all moneys which may be received from freights and passengers until the arrival of the liquidator in Oregon. Freights will therefore be collected at Portland as heretofore and through tickets over the Oregonian Railway will be given to passengers at Portland applying for same at the Jefferson street depot of the P. & W. V. railway. Shippers sending grain to Portland from narrow gauge points will not now require to pay their freights in advance but can have them collected at Portland on arrival, and free cartage or delivery will be given by the P. & W. V. Co. for the next sixteen days.

It was rumored in the city several [illegible] that William Reid, on behalf of the Portland & Willamette Valley railroad, had made the liquidator an offer to purchase the Oregonian railway. Mr. Reid denies this, and states that the road is in no financial condition for any purchaser to acquire a title to it at present, and until the debts and priority of liens are ascertained neither he nor his company would entertain any offer whatever for the road. It is thought some other railway company, probably the Oregon Pacific or its friends, might become purchasers. Three gentlemen have for some days been walking on foot over the Oregonian inspecting the condition of its bridges and road bed, but on whose account or for what purpose none of the employes have yet learned. It is evident from the proceedings taken in Scotland this week that neither the stockholders nor bondholders will attempt to reorganize the concern again, and consequently it must fall into the hands eventually of some purchaser. The liquidator has informed persons in Oregon that if he sells the railway at all it will only be for cash paid down on the day of sale, that the Scotch people will make no more leases nor trade their railway off in exchange for any more mortgage bonds or securities under the laws of Oregon.

STATUS OF THE COMPANY'S AFFAIRS.

On Wednesday last, March 20, the affairs of the Oregonian Railway Company limited were, by order of the supreme court of Scotland, wound up in court and the official liquidator was then appointed by the Scotch courts. His name is David Miles, of Dundee, Scotland. His bonds were approved and confirmed by the court and he cabled yesterday to Portland, Oregon, that he expected to reach this state within twenty-one days, for the purpose of winding up the affairs of the Oregonian railway and disposing of its property. His powers are given under what is called in Great Britain "The Limited Liability Companies Acts of [illegible]62, 1867, 1877, 1879 and 1880," and in particular by section 9[illegible], which says: "The official liquidator shall have power to do the following things:

First—To bring or defend any action, suit or prosecution or other legal proceeding, civil or criminal, in the name or on behalf of the company.

Second—To carry on the business of the company so far as may be necessary only for the beneficial winding up of the same.

Third—To sell the real and personal and heritable and movable property, effects and things in action of the company by public auction or private contract, with power to transfer the whole thereof to any person or company or to sell the same in parcels.

Fourth—To do all acts and to execute in the name and on behalf of the company all deeds, receipts and other documents, and for that purpose to use when necessary the company's seal."

The precise words of the acts of parliament of Great Britain are quoted to show that the liquidator is an autocrat, and that our American citizens who wish to buy a railway need not have any fears about his powers, which are unlimited, although the defunct company was "The Oregonian Railway Company Limited." It is hoped he will call on the numerous creditors, receivers and certificate holders in Oregon and pay them up their debts when he arrives, as the employes of the road are getting anxious for their wages.

FINANCIAL CONDITION OF OREGONIAN RY.

Its first mortgage bonds are for $1,0[illegible]; the receiver's certificates and indebtedness in Oregon about $423,000. Its first mortgage bonds says: "and declaring in terms of our articles of association that the respective holders of or other persons entitled to all deeds of security in terms similar to these presents granted or to be granted by us shall proportionately be entitled to be paid out of our said property and assets, and out of any unpaid capital aforesaid, the respective sums in such deeds of security mentioned, and the interest thereof, without any preference or priority one above another by reason of priority of date of any such deed of security or otherwise howsoever." Nevertheless it is claimed by eminent American lawyers that these words cannot prevent the receiver's debts in Oregon from being first paid out of the property before first mortgage bondholders get one dollar, and if this view is sustained by the courts in Oregon, as it has been sustained in other states, then the owners of the first mortgage bonds can only recover from their stockholders in Scotland the unpaid capital, now $7[illegible],000, due from its shares unassessed, and get any margin left over after the Oregon debts are paid.

DEATH OF JAMES B. STEPHENS.

The Pioneer of 1844 Passes Away at His Home in East Portland.

James B. Stephens, known throughout the Northwest as Uncle Jimmy Stephens, died at his home on the banks of the Willamette at 10:10 last night. His health had been steadily failing for several years and the past several days his condition was so critical that his death was expected momentarily.

James B. Stephens was a typical pioneer. He settled on the site of East Portland long before the sound of the woodman's axe had penetrated the forest on the spot where Portland now stands. He was born on the line of Brooke county, Virginia, and Washington county, Penn., November 1[illegible], 1808. When he was eight years old his parents moved to Indiana, which was then a territory, and lived on a farm during most of the time. He learned the cooperage trade and followed it several years in Indiana and three years in Cincinnati, Ohio. He afterward purchased a farm in Hancock county on the Mississippi river and established a grocery store on his place.

It was in 1844 that he came to Oregon. He located a section of land in East Portland. In 184[illegible] he made 1000 flour barrels and 4[illegible] barrels for the Hudson Bay Company, and in 184[illegible] he made 480 beef barrels for shipment to the Sandwich Islands.

East Portland was laid out by Mr. Stephens in 1850. He divided his land into town lots and offered them to settlers at their own terms, thus materially aiding to build up the East Side of the river.

He was married in 1830 to Miss Elizabeth Walker, who died several years ago.

The first ferry between the East and West sides of the river was owned and run by James B. Stephens, and he at one time owned a large portion of the site of East Portland.

A man made of stern material, he was very useful in the early days when [illegible] courage was needed to make a home in the wilderness. The courage he displayed when surrounded by danger and hardship was exhibited in his last illness. He knew his end was approaching, but he talked of it with the same calmness he would of any ordinary occurrence.

He leaves a large property. What disposition he has made of it will soon be known.

No time has yet been fixed for the funeral.

THE FREE BATH HOUSE PROJECT

The Soliciting Committee Began Work Yesterday and Fared Well.

It looks now as if the free bath house project, inaugurated [illegible] by Mr. Edward Holman, of the [illegible] of Dekum & Holman, is assured. Yesterday Mr. Holman and [illegible] McKercher, of the committee appointed [illegible] subscriptions for the purpose, made a tour [illegible] portion of the city and collected $[illegible]. Mr. Holman heads the list with $100.

Those who subscribed to the fund yesterday were: George E. Watkins, Edward H[illegible], [illegible] Atkinson, Labbe Bros., [illegible], James Gleason, Meier & Frank, Sam Lowenstein, [illegible] & Hall, the A. P. Hotaling Co., Cohn [illegible] & Co., Penumbra Kelly, Olds & King, J. E. [illegible], Walter Bros., A. B. Steinbach, [illegible], E. Sitton, H. S. Allen, E. H. Shepard, A. Feldheimer, R. B. Knight, T. [illegible], Joseph Simon, [illegible], Woodard, Clarke & Co., J. [illegible], the John Barrett Co., T. [illegible], J. K. Gill & Co., T. H. [illegible] & Walker, C. G. Tingry, Eugene [illegible], H. W. Monastes, Lowndale, Wheeler & Co., Theodore Wygant, W. S. Sibson, Philip [illegible].

A[illegible] from $1 up will be received by Messrs. McKercher, Holman and [illegible] Watkins of the committee. The [illegible] amount needed is $1400 and the greater [illegible] of de[illegible].

THREE MEN COVER 100 MILES

At 12 O'Clock Midnight Eleven Men Were Still In the Race.

Only three [illegible] contestants in the six days go-as-you-please [illegible] Mechanics' pavilion covered the 100 miles necessary to entitle them to the privilege of competing for the cash prizes by 10 o'clock last night. Harry Stuart (No. 4) made the 100 miles by 6 o'clock, and at 10 o'clock he had covered 110 miles.

Hoabe (No. 6) finished his 100th mile a [illegible] minutes past 8 o'clock.

Theodore Johnson made 103 miles by 10 o'clock.

These three are the only ones who made the 100 miles within the twenty-four hours required for those who expect to compete for the cash prizes.

At 10 o'clock midnight eleven men were still in the race, those who did not make the 100 miles by 10 o'clock remaining to compete for the gate receipts.

The score at 12 o'clock stood as follows: Black (No. 1), 79 miles; Stuart (No. 4), 110 miles; Pollard (No. 5), 84 miles; Hoab (No. 6), 111 miles; Vincent (No. 8), 94 miles; Johnson (No. 9), 110 miles; Hogarth (No. 10), 97 miles; Moore (No. 16), 91 miles; Knapp (No. 14), 51 miles; Wilson (No. 15), 57 miles.

The crowd last night was larger than it was on the opening night. The scorers having got their hands into the business keep tally systematically and correctly. The little confusion that was occasioned by the wild shouts and yelling of the crowd on the first night was no longer to contend with, and everything works harmoniously and without hitch or jar.

EAST SIDE HAPPENINGS.

Phalanx Lodge No. 14, K. of P., Celebrates Its Sixth Anniversary.

A Banquet, With Toasts and Responses—Special School Meeting Held—An Angry Woman—Sacks Found.

Phalanx lodge No. 14, K. of P., celebrated its sixth anniversary last night with appropriate ceremony. This lodge was organized March 22, 1883, with twenty-one members. It was organized with the following officers: Sitting past chancellor, H. H. Kitchins; C. C., T. J. Matlock; B. C., Henry Meyer; prelate, M. J. Patton; K. of R. and S., H. H. Holmes; M. of F., D. M. F[illegible]; M. of E., C. G. Garrison; M. of A., H. Warner; I. G., W. T. Hill; O. G., C. B. Bartel; District deputy, F. [illegible]. The lodge is now on the high way to prosperity. It has had some heavy burdens to carry, but have carried them and prospered.

Invitations were extended to the Albina and Vancouver lodges and there was a large delegation from both these lodges. Twenty-seven came from Vancouver, a special train bringing them over here and taking them back.

The festivities took place in Ross hall, which was comfortably crowded. Two tables extending the entire length of the hall were loaded down with the good things. When all were full, [illegible] Bloomer, C. C., called the assembly to order.

After a few remarks of welcome he called on Dr. Royal, who made a short address of welcome. Mr. Brewster, of the Albina lodge, [illegible] made an eloquent address on the principles of the order.

Mr. Ploumfield, of Vancouver, then made an excellent address, which created much amusement. On invitation the assembly then gathered at the tables, and ample justice was done to the fine repast that had been prepared in great abundance.

Dr. Wigg responded to the toast "The Grand Officers."

Mr. [illegible] made an excellent address in behalf of the Vancouver lodge, in which he congratulated Phalanx lodge on the success of the entertainment and said the latch string of the door of Vancouver lodge is always on the outside.

Mr. D. D. Neer made a happy address in response to the toast "Sociability," giving his experience concerning sociability among people while traveling.

He was followed by Judge Llewellyn in a response to "Absent Members," and [illegible] F. Hall [illegible] of Albina favored the company with a song entitled "Sauer Kraut."

"Our Sister Lodges" was proposed by A. B. Bloomer, and in response Dr. J. H. Hepplon, of Vancouver, read a letter of regret from Governor Semple at not being able to be present. The health of Governor Semple was then drunk with hearty good will, followed by a toast to the health of the new governor, Miles C. Moore, by Inspector General Glover.

John Gwill then sang a song and the chancellor commander announced "Good of the order," which was responded to in fitting terms by W. H. Brewster, of Vancouver.

He was followed by others in equally appropriate remarks until the meeting broke up in excellent spirits, and those present were ready to depart to their homes.

The sixth anniversary of Phalanx Lodge K. of P. was successfully celebrated and the event will live long in the memories of all who were participants thereof.

SPECIAL SCHOOL MEETING.

There was a special school meeting at Midway schoolhouse, district [illegible], Tuesday night last, on which occasion a tax of five mills for school purposes was levied. The attendance was very small and little interest was shown in the meeting. Among the business transacted was the payment of a bill for election tickets. The directors have not had much experience in such matters or they would have referred the bill to the successful candidates for payment. But it is to be hoped the district will have easy sailing from now on. The eastern portion of the district has been cut off and attached to district No. [illegible].

A WOMAN'S FURY.

A gentleman was passing along the Milwaukie road Tuesday morning near Milwaukie when he was attacked by a woman to whom he had given some offense. She heaped on him all manner of abuse, cursing and using a perfect volley of vile language. She finally wound up by throwing stones at him and threatening to kill him. The trouble grew out of a remonstrance filed in the recorder's court against granting a renewal of license to retail liquor in that district. The gentleman said if the attack is repeated he will have the woman arrested. He lives in that neighborhood and does not intend to be driven out.

GRAIN SACKS FOUND.

Marshal Morgan discovered 100 new grain sacks under the bluff to bank on J and First streets. These sacks are doubtless a portion of those stolen from the Transcontinental Street Car Company of Portland.

GONE TO LOWER CALIFORNIA.

Mr. G. W. [illegible] will leave soon for California with his wife and daughter in the hope the change will benefit their health. Mrs. S[illegible] has not been well since her accident on the railroad at W[illegible].

THE BABY HOME.

The ladies of the W. C. T. U. have had charge of the Baby Home ever since it has been [illegible] and have had rather hard work all along. "We have constantly pulled up hill," remarked one lady who has given a good deal of time to the institution. But now several gentlemen have taken hold of the enterprise and have incorporated, the object being to place it on a permanent basis and relieve the ladies largely from their financial burdens. It is not known what changes will be made, but something will be done shortly.

CAN'T BE CURED.

The many friends of Mrs. J. C. Mendenhall will be grieved by the intelligence that her physicians give little or no hope for her recovery. She is now at her home in this city, where she was recently moved from the hospital. Every possible care is being bestowed on her by the ladies with whom she has spent many years in Christian work. She is missed in many homes in East Portland, where her sunshine and brightness have inspired hope.

FRED'K WARDE AS VIRGINIUS

A Splendid Audience Witnesses the Tragedian's Masterly Rendition of the Roman Father.

Not to have seen Fred Warde in his great impersonation of Virginius is to have missed one of the finest expositions of true dramatic art which the stage of to-day affords. Evidently such was the opinion of many others, since the New Park theater last night held an audience which in numbers and enthusiasm surpassed any previous audience of the week, and well were they repaid for their presence, for they were regaled with a dramatic feast whose memory will long linger with them.

Of all the roles which Mr. Warde essays there is none that makes greater demands upon his powers than does this role of Virginius. [illegible] play and the burden of and[illegible] succeeding act until the tragic [illegible] upon which the final curtain falls [illegible] the gruesome story to a close. The tension [illegible] upon the audience as well as the actor, and there is a feeling of relief when it is over. Yet through each successive stage of the play Mr. Warde, by the force of his genius, carries his audience with him. They smile with him at the sweetness of the fair Virginia to win her [illegible] to [illegible] and weep with him [illegible] to [illegible] heart [illegible] tells the story of the outrage put upon his daughter. How splendidly he carried this scene, righteous indignation and [illegible]. The great [illegible] scene [illegible] superbly acted. But the [illegible] artistic [illegible] he passes out [illegible] faculties and wanders about seeking for his lost Virginia. His pathos [illegible] alone stamp him as a [illegible] of genius.

Mr. H. J. Weaver as Appius Claudius showed [illegible] thorough appreciation of the dramatic possibilities of the role. He possesses a fine voice, which he uses well, and a splendid physique.

Mr. J. H. Anderson made an earnest and very manly [illegible]. He was especially good in his defiance of [illegible] in the third scene.

Miss Adel[illegible] Belgarde's Virginia was an excellent portrayal of [illegible]. She looked the part, and her acting was marked with all that grace and delicacy [illegible] demanded.

Mr. [illegible] as Numitorius, Miss Stella Bonface as Servia, Mr. Stuart as Lucius, and the remainder of the cast were acceptable.

Mr. Warde was the recipient of several enthusiastic recalls during the play.

At the matinee this afternoon William Tell, and last performance of Mr. Warde to-night, when Richard the Third will be given.

A LIGHT JUDICIAL DAY.

The Trial of Ah Lee, Who Is Charged With Perjury.

Clark Damage Case Gone to the Jury—The Drunks—Shielded Her Husband—Must Vacate—He Was Discharged.

Ah Lee, charged with perjury for accusing Pon Long of having taken part in the Chinese riot last December, was tried in the criminal court yesterday. The examination of witnesses was finished when the court adjourned at 5 o'clock, and the argument will be heard this morning. The case is identical with the case of Ah Back, who was tried and acquitted Thursday.

CONKRIGHT DISCHARGED.

Stephen Conkright had an examination in Justice Phelan's court yesterday afternoon on a charge of attempting a felonious assault upon Mollie S[illegible], daughter of J. S[illegible], an inebriated tailor having a shop on the west side of Fourth street, near Salmon. The court room was filled by witnesses and [illegible] at the opening of court, but at the suggestion of the defendant the room was cleared and then the testimony of the principal witness was taken.

Mollie, the complaining witness, being sworn, said that her age was 14. Being asked if she [illegible] it was not more than [illegible] and [illegible] she replied in the [illegible]. [illegible] told that she was born in 1871, which would make her present age over 17.

With regard to the attempted assault she told a very improbable story [illegible] of the circumstances and very [illegible]. Officer Wood testified that on the date that the attempted assault is alleged to have been made Mollie was at the Good Samaritan [illegible] and in charge of the Jewish [illegible] Aid Society.

The father of the girl merely told of what his daughter had communicated to him, and would [illegible] in the [illegible] if the defendant had not been [illegible] court not restrained him.

The defendant denied the allegations set forth in the complaint in toto and averred that the charge was trumped up against him out of [illegible]. Other [illegible] were not called up.

[illegible] declined to argue the case, and the court discharged the defendant. The testimony was contradictory [illegible] to make out any kind of a case.

SHE SHIELDED HIM.

Louis Wilson, a [illegible] living up stairs in a building at the [illegible] corner of Fourth and Yamhill streets, was arraigned in the police court yesterday afternoon on a charge of assault and battery upon his wife. The complaint was sworn to by Dr. Paul Semler, who keeps an office and drug store under the building on Fourth street.

Dr. Semler testified that he saw the prisoner strike his wife at the Yamhill street entrance during a quarrel Thursday evening. Another witness corroborated this testimony to the extent of having seen the prisoner stand over his wife with his hand raised in a threatening attitude.

Wilson denied having struck his wife, but admitted that he had been quarreling with her. His wife, being placed on the stand, testified substantially as he did. In reply to the question by the district attorney why she was crying in the hallway when seen by Dr. Semler, she replied that she cried because she wanted to.

The court had no question in his mind but what the assault had been committed, but in consideration of the fact that Mrs. Wilson, the injured party, refused to testify against her husband, the minimum fine of $5 was imposed.

STOLE THEIR OWN TRUNKS.

The case of George Purvis against Adolph Kroner and Ernest Kroner for the possession of two trunks will be tried in Justice Tuttle's court this afternoon. A short time ago the defendants boarded with Purvis, and being unable to liquidate their bills, the latter retained possession of their trunks. Since that time the defendants forcibly took their trunks during the absence of Purvis. Purvis then caused the arrest of the men for stealing their own trunk. This rather complicated case will be the first to be tried by the new [illegible] law enacted during the last session of the legislature.

NEW SUITS.

Jacob Tippery sued J. M. Leavens & Co. and the Oregon Barrel Company in the state circuit court to recover $[illegible] and for a decree foreclosing a lien on a lot of shingle bolts.

The Northwest Loan & Trust Company sued John S. and Margaret Raleigh and Joseph Hume for a decree ordering the sale of the north one-half of the lot on the southeast corner of First and Stark streets, subject to the mortgage of Hume, and that the proceeds be divided between the plaintiff and Mr. Raleigh.

AMY BRINTON MUST VACATE.

Two days ago [illegible] and M. Wolff brought suit in Justice Tuttle's court against Amy Brinton for the possession of the house at No. [illegible] Sixth street. The defendant, maintaining that she had legal right to remain in possession of the premises, engaged counsel to defend her in the suit. The court took the case under advisement until yesterday, when a decision was rendered in favor of plaintiffs. Amy Brinton will have to vacate.

POLICE COURT.

Dan Durand, John Franstrom and John Dougherty, drunk, fined $5 each; John Manning, same, $10; Ed Driscoll, larceny, fifteen days; George Bennett, vagrancy, $20; James Horton, vagrant, continued till this afternoon; Ed Haight, using abusive language to Neil McKinnon, continued till Monday afternoon.

A [illegible] OF ACTUAL FRAUD.

W. S. Edwards had an examination in Judge Tuttle's court yesterday afternoon on a charge of larceny of forty quarts of milk, valued at $1 60, the property of Davis W[illegible]. The court took the case under advisement and will render a decision Monday morning.

SHAW GETS THE CHATTELS.

The case of Shaw vs. Wright, involving the ownership of a horse, wagon and harness, tried in Justice Tuttle's court last Wednesday, was yesterday decided in favor of the plaintiff. The property under dispute is valued at $125.

MINOR COURT NOTES.

A CHINESE OPIUM PA

A Look at the Biggest Opium the World at Shangha

[Copyrighted 1889 by Frank G. C SHANGHAI, Jan. 25.—[Special C ence.]—I visited last night the big den of the world. It is situated o of this great cosmopolitan city of in which Chinese rowdies from a the empire congregate and where man has learned to play billiard whisky and to practice the refi Western as well as Eastern vice tial saloons of New York, the Barr Hoffman house and the gilded pa in San Francisco have cost hu thousand of dollars. This opium Chinese has likewise eaten up a o It is more like a palace than an op ing joint for pig-tailed Celestial stories high and covering wi be nearly half an America it entrance is lighted with tric light and its interior is in the most extravagant Chines The ceilings are of richly carved the finest of Chinese lamps eac cost hundreds of dollars throw over the hazy smoking crowd wit painted walls are inlaid with curio the grain of which is such as to giv of landscape sketches, and the fi the rooms is in carved teak woo oiled and colored shines like ebo were perhaps a thousand smoke opium den when I visited it last n pushed my way into it through a th resenting every class of Chinese was the pompous mandarin in silks beside the half naked coolie cotton. There were loose wome perate looking men, quiet, intellec ars and wealthy Chinese merch stopped under the electric light to pots of opium as thick as molasse holding about what could be cro the smallest of our American salts. The coolie and the manda charged the same for their opium paid different prices, according to which they occupied and the pi they used in smoking. The chea about 10 cents a smoke, and the d sold for not much more than 15 ce pipes, however, were different. T about two feet long with a big ro set into the handle. The mandari pipes of ivory, some of which we rately carved, while the coolies we with plain pipes of wood. The this opium den are said to be n $1000 a day, and I am told it is alw

Passing the electric light you c after hall filled with hazy fumes smelling vapor through which the gorgeous lamps struggling find th and cast a weird ghost-like air smokers resting below. The smok partments are divided into cells o front and separated from one a gorgeous carvings of teak wood w ored with the smoke of thous turned from a rich brown into a Each cell accommodates two or ple and the most of the men I saw were in couples. On each side glass lamp the men lay on red sometimes dropping their feet u and resting their heads on blue pill about a foot square and a foot most expensive of the compart cushions of fine velvet and the some couches were inlaid with m pearl and jade. In some of the priv I noted women smoking with They were not, I was told, the wiv smokers, and it is no more cred Chinese woman to smoke opium or an American girl to dri Opium smokers always lie down w up. They bend themselves spo as they manipulate the opium, dra their lungs and blow it out of the In some cases I noted large room private parties seemed to have ass an opium smoke together, and through every hall of this large or and did not see a bit of disorder. smoker is different from the drunk opium calms instead of excite treated with politeness everywhe drowsy, sleepy crowd did not see that I stopped and looked at them

This is, however, only one of hu opium shops in Shanghai. I vis den upon leaving this big one and nearly as large. These balls in dried poppy leaves, and here in duty on opium is so heavy that th officers watch these chests very Shanghai there are a number of which look like floating swimmin naval training ships, in which th passed upon by the customs is st by which method smuggling is prevented. The Chinese are the smugglers in the world, and it is o aid of foreigners that they are able a good customs service. And the from foreign customs are now fou great as they were several decades

The Chinese are naturally opi but it is due to the foreigner that has become a national evil. The the emperor saw the danger befo and they tried to keep the opium country.
